on the Stanleyville airport. The attack came as Belgian paratroopers who had seized the airport Tuesday prepared to fly to Katanga, on their way back to Belgium.

Central government troops who were to replace the paratroopers helped the Belgians drive off several hundred attacking rebels.

No casualty reports were available and details of the attack were scarce.

Meanwhile, refugees from Paulis brought word to Leopoldville of a massacre at the remote village of Wamba, 90 miles from Paulis. They said as many as 50 whites may have been killed there by the rebels.

A U.S. embassy spokesman said he was unable to confirm the report.

The Canadian embassy here said nine Canadians still have not been accounted for in the Congo.

(Various mission headquarters in Canada said Friday five Canadian missionaries had not been heard from since the Belgian-United States paratrooper rescue mission began Tuesday.)

Among passengers aboard a U.S. transport plane arriving here Friday was Canadian missionary Collis Buckley of Vancouver. He and his wife were rescued in the Paulis operation. Shortly after the paratroopers landed in Paulis, 250 miles northeast of Stanleyville, Buckley led them to the rescue of a Welsh missionary couple.

The Canadian told reporters here he vainly "begged the Belgians to lend me some trucks and guns" so he could go to the rescue of other white missionaries.

Buckley also said about 80 rebel soldiers headed towards Wamba when the Belgians hit Paulis. Greek, Belgian and British citizens, including missionaries, were reported among the whites in Wamba.

Snipers still fired from buildings in the main European section on the east bank of the river as government soldiers and their white officers flushed them out.

SNIPERS ACTIVE

"Stanleyville is under control," said a U.S. embassy spokesman, "but all resistance has not been eliminated. The city is virtually deserted, the Congolese have fled to the bush. But snipers still are active and you can easily get a bullet through your head."

Christophe Gbenye, who set up a Chinese-backed republic after his forces captured Stanleyville last August, was reported heading for refuge in Sudan.

Canadians Stuck For 'An Eternity'

TORONTO (CP) — Canadian troops will have to stay in Cyprus for an eternity under existing United Nations arrangements, Dalton Camp, president of the Progressive Conservative Association of Canada, said Thursday night.

Mr. Camp, who recently visited the Mediterranean island, said that while the UN was spending about $2,000,000 monthly on the Cyprus military peacekeeping operation, it was not taking steps to end poverty or stop the "fratricidal, homicidal propaganda" of one ethnic group against the other.

Mr. Camp was a member of a panel at a meeting of the Toronto branch of the World Federalists of Canada.

He said UN terms on Cyprus were limited and, as a result, guaranteed no solution for the problems of Turkish and Greek Cypriots.

VANCOUVER (UPI) — A rockslide Friday closed the North Vancouver to Squamish highway at Porteau, 27 miles north of here, and forced the Pacific Great Eastern railway to halt operations there "indefinitely."

Coffin Case Report Completed by Judge

MONTREAL (CP) — A three-volume royal commission report into the trial and execution of Wilbert Coffin was handed over to Attorney-General Claude Wagner Friday by Mr. Justice Roger Brossard.

Mr. Wagner said the report will be submitted to the provincial cabinet before being made public.

Private Power?

Istion disclosed that a Crown reserve had been placed on the Iskut valley last summer.

The minister said then that the project would probably depend upon use of power in mines planned by Keneco Stikine Co., south of the Stikine River, and Granduc Mines Ltd., north of Stewart.

There is speculation here that the pulp development in the region could be by Rayonier Canada (B.C.) Ltd.

A government spokesman said Friday there has not yet been any application for a water licence in connection with the power proposal.

The dam involved could be built in stages, providing as little as 50,000 kilowatts in the first phase.

The Iskut has been investigated by provincial water rights experts who found four possible power project sites with a total output capacity of 578,000 kilowatts of prime power.

German Jet Returning Home

MUNICH, Germany (UPI) — A model of the world's first mass-produced missile jet fighter, the ME-163, will be returned to Germany by the British today, 19 years after the end of the war.

Built by the famed Messerschmitt Aircraft Company, the plane was flown at a speed of 600 mph in 1941 by Heini Dittmar. The plane will be going on display at Munich's Deutsches Museum. The museum already sports the world's first jet plane, the ME-262.

Audience Pleased By Student Play

The Beggar Queen, a play in three acts, was presented Friday night by the St. Joseph's Parish Players to a large and appreciative audience at Mari-gold School.

The players on this occasion numbered about 50 and ranged in age from eight to 16. All in all they did a good job.

NATURAL DIGNITY

Rene Meurs as the Angel Guardian was quite the outstanding performer. She contrived a natural dignity and serenity which was very impressive and the more so when one realized that, in another guise, she belted out the musical hit Getting to Know You with considerable success. Versatility is all the thing onstage these days and Rene is apparently cultivating it.

TOUCHING INTERLUDE

As the Queen, Sharon Grieve was suitably impressive and she provided a touching interlude at the end of the second act. But the part is rather badly written; it fails to offer variations in character while leading the performer with repetitive lines.

Both the Countess Mercedes (Linda Caton) and her diminutive daughter (Rose Mary Rey) were most acceptable and there were two unidentified peasants at the beginning of the second act who deserve top marks for picking up cues smartly; otherwise this didn't happen too often.

AMBITIOUS PROJECT

However, the whole youthful cast can be congratulated on accomplishing, with no small degree of success, a rather ambitious project.

The scenic elements were entirely satisfactory; lighting was effective; the recorded music had its troubles but ultimately overcame them.

Mrs. A. Winkelmann directed.

Inquiry Broadened

Favreau announced that a judicial inquiry would be held to investigate the bribery and coercion reports, the opposition had been pressing for a widening of the inquiry. The cabinet session to approve the new terms of reference, four days after Mr. Nielsen shocked the Commons with his statements.

Mr. Nielsen has charged—and the government has neither denied nor confirmed—that one ministerial aide tried to bribe a Montreal lawyer to drop opposition to bail for Lucien Rivard, who the U.S. wants extradited to the U.S. on a charge of heroin smuggling.

'INNOCENT DUPE'

Mr. Nielsen has also charged that Guy Lord, former executive assistant to Mr. Favreau, acted as an "innocent dupe" in trying to coerce the Montreal lawyer, Pierre Lamontagne, into dropping opposition to bail.

Guy Rouleau, Montreal MP for Dollard, has resigned as parliamentary secretary to Prime Minister Pearson, whose absence from the Commons on a western political tour has brought severe opposition criticism. Mr. Rouleau said he made representations in the case of Rivard.

Mr. Nielsen said he has information of such an "explosive" nature that he hasn't shared it with anyone.

HAS GRAVE DOUBTS

But he had grave doubts whether he should deal in the Commons with matters referred to the commission of Chief Justice Frederic Doherty of the Quebec Superior Court.

He said he will assist the judicial inquiry in every way he can if he is called as a witness. Mr. Nielsen said he has no knowledge of any matters not in the RCMP report dealing with the allegations of bribery and coercion.

Mr. Nielsen cited a Quebec court case of last year in which there was summary punishment by the judge for contempt of court through undue interference with the administration of justice.

OFFICER OF COURTS

Mr. Nielsen said Mr. Favreau is an officer of the Quebec courts and should have brought to the attention of the judge hearing the Rivard case or the Quebec attorney-general the allegations of bribery and coercion against the ministerial aides.

Opposition Leader Diefenbaker demanded to know why Mr. Favreau had not brought the allegations of bribery and coercion to the attention of the judge, presiding over the application for bail.

The judge could have proceeded with a contempt charge for interference with the course of justice.

GREATEST CRISIS

Mr. Favreau made no reply. Mr. Nielsen said Mr. Favreau was apparently unaware of last year's Quebec case in this regard.

Robert Coates (PC — Cumberland) said the government is in its greatest crisis and Mr. Pearson had "got up and walked out for a barnstorming tour for political votes and funds."

LIKENED TO NERO

Such action was "just unbelievable." Like Nero, Mr. Pearson fiddled while Rome burned. Mr. Coates said Canadians believe such a thing could have happened in the administration of justice in this country.

Mr. Nielsen said Mr. Favreau is no longer fit to hold the justice portfolio. He even lacked knowledge of the law.

Mr. Nielsen said he has tried to be meticulously certain of his facts. None of his charges had been denied by Mr. Favreau.

FRAISES LAMONTAGNE

The Yukon Conservative said words cannot adequately express his admiration of the integrity and courage of Mr. Lamontagne, who is a loyal member of the Liberal party.

Gene Rheasme (PC — Northwest Territories) said Mr. Rouleau had been "smoked out" by Mr. Nielsen.

"I'm suggesting that there are others," he added.

Mouth Not Only Culprit When Bad Breath Strikes

By JOSEPH MOLNER, MD

Dear Dr. Molner: Here is a sensitive subject, bad breath, but no one talks about it, and its causes and what can be done about it. Can you suggest something? My teeth are excellent. I have tried mouth washes, lemon juice in the morning, and special tooth pastes.—L.M.

Mouth washes and toothpastes aren't, for the most part, of more than trifling use. They're good enough, that is, if breath odor is only mildly and temporarily less than ideal.

Here are points on how to deal with the problem:

● Is the breath really bad, or are you oversensitive about it?

● Do you customarily eat foods that leave odors? If you are an onion and garlic lover, don't expect to have breath like a baby's.

● Ditto for smoking.

● Or drinking. Even casual drinkers sometimes acquire quite an odor.

● Teeth. Yes, a toothbrush helps. And regular dental care to prevent or correct cavities or (a frequent cause) disease of the gums, is imperative. But food particles can be trapped in between perfectly sound teeth, and decay there, and resist the most assiduous brushing. This is one of the very common causes of bad breath, and the answer isn't very difficult. Use dental floss to clean between the teeth.

● How's your nose? Most bad breath originates in the mouth, nose or throat. Catarrh, post-nasal discharge or "drip," chronic infections and such disorders of the nose may need attention.

● Infected tonsils (and adenoids) can be contributors. Have you had your doctor look at them?

● A "sour" odor can be a clue if digestive disorders are involved. This is not a frequent cause, but it can occur.

● Lung and throat diseases can cause fetid odor, but the other causes are more frequent. Bronchiectasis is one possibility.

In short, remember that mouth, nose and throat are the commonest sources—not just the mouth, but all three.

Trapped food particles are invisible (hidden between the teeth) and this is a frequently overlooked factor. Have your teeth cleaned periodically.

Dear Dr. Molner: While high-jumping, my daughter injured the cartilage in her knee. The doctor advises the removal of the injured part. He said there was a chance it might get better by just resting it, but that the surgery should be performed within a year. I would like your opinion.—MRS. M.V.

Such surgery is done frequently for cartilage injuries, and a functional joint—one which works, that is—results. Many professional athletes, for example, have this sort of operation, and return to active competition.

Screaming Cairo Mob Burns U.S. Library

By United Press International
Mobs of African nationalists and communists attacked American property in Czechoslovakia, Bulgaria, Kenya and the United Arab Republic in violent demonstrations Friday against the U.S.-Belgian rescue mission in the Congo.

In Florence, Italy, more than 50 sign-carrying Africans picketed both the U.S. and British legations. Britain also assisted the rescue mission by Belgian paratroopers.

Brussels saw a counter-demonstration in favor of the mission. About 300 Belgians, mostly students, smashed windows in the Algerian embassy before a strong police force drove them away. The students chanted anti-Communist slogans and carried signs reading, "All Communists to Moscow" and "Long Live the Paratroopers."

LIBRARY BURNED
By far the worst demonstration occurred in Cairo, where a screaming mob set fire to the John F. Kennedy Library within the U.S. embassy compound.

The demonstrators also damaged some smaller buildings. Damage to the library books alone — generally considered to constitute the finest collection in Cairo — was estimated at $250,000 and informed sources predicted total damage would be "considerably in excess of $500,000."

MANY WEPT
U.S. ambassador Lucius D. Battle called it "an irresponsible and unjustified attack." Egyptians milled around the smoking ruins. Many wept. The library had been a haven for hundreds of Egyptian students.

Forty Africans were arrested by Egyptian police who rushed to the scene and battled the rioters. At least one policeman and several of the demonstrators were injured. In addition, several firemen were injured extinguishing the blaze.

SOME EGYPTIANS
Egyptian authorities withheld information on the nationality of those arrested, but eyewitnesses said there were some Egyptians among the demonstrators.

It was learned the Cairo fire department was notified of the attack as soon as it started, before the library was put to the torch. But fire engines took 45 minutes to reach the burning building from a fire station two blocks away.

For the Congo

Kenyatta Sees More Confusion

NAIROBI, Kenya (UPI) — Premier Jomo Kenyatta, chairman of the Organization of African Unity commission on the Congo, said Friday the perilous nature of recent events have created an entirely new situation in the Congo.

"Whether or not the Stanley-ville (rebel) authorities still exist as a coherent force is unknown," he told an emergency meeting of the commission.

"Whether or not they or other groups will continue to oppose the Leopoldville government in any organized sense and to a significant degree cannot be certain."

PERIOD OF CONFUSION

"It must, however, be presumed that opposition to the Tshombe government will arise again even after a period of confusion and that the whole position may be further confused by continuing foreign prompting or intervention."

"In view of all this it is apparent the situation existing in September is so disrupted that the mandate of this commission issued by the OAU is seriously jeopardized."

Kenyatta suggested the commission should consider whether the parent OAU body should be asked to review the mandate or whether attempts at reconciliation should start again.

Dispatch Erroneous

NEW YORK (UPI) — In a dispatch from Stanleyville, the Congo, Wednesday, United Press International erroneously reported that Belgian paratroops shot and killed African civilians in the streets.

The dispatch said that in one instance Belgian paratroops stopped an African riding a bicycle and shot him dead after accusing him of lying in answer to questions.

Further investigation indicates that the African was shot by soldiers wearing Belgian uniforms and speaking Flemish and French. But they were not wearing the red berets of the Belgian paratroops.

PARIS (AP) — Physicians watching over the four surviving Sabor quintuplets reported Friday that two of them are having trouble breathing.

Catholic Congress Opens Today

BOMBAY (UPI) — The 38th International Eucharistic Congress opens today with political overtones injected into a purely religious event. (See also Page 31.)

Strong opposition to the Congress comes from fanatic religious sects. There is also some honest misunderstanding among the general public. India is only two per cent Roman Catholic.

lie with a great majority of people Hindus.
The Congress glorifies the Eucharist, or the blood and flesh of Christ represented as wine and bread. The gathering does not pronounce doctrines nor make church decisions, but seeks to point up the importance of the Eucharist.

Many Indians believe it is a Catholic missionary attempt which they consider objectionable. Others with politics in mind are trying to use it as an opportunity for demonstrations.

The government has arrested six persons in Bombay and is confining other known troublemakers to their villages and towns in the Bombay area.

The situation is complicated by the four-day visit of Pope Paul, beginning Wednesday, the Indian government greatly wants everything to go smoothly.

The emphasis of the Congress and the Pope's visit has been on aiding the poor, with the Pope donating his golden tiara. The government, however, quickly stopped plans for the Catholics to handle distribution.

It announced that gifts of food and "gifts of every description donated by the Holy Father" will be channelled through the governor of Maharashtra State where Bombay is located.

Mr. Sharp's Anomaly

TRADE MINISTER MITCHELL SHARP is a western-born English-speaking Canadian, who is undoubtedly making a well-intentioned effort as a member of the federal government to make sure that the Confederation does not crumble and that the difference between Quebec and the rest of Canada will find an amicable solution.

Mr. Sharp believes it is his duty, and that of other Canadians, to learn to accept and to value diversity and to strive to become a member of both French and English societies.

While the economics and practicality of such a union are probably hard to imagine, Mr. Sharp must get "E" for effort.

At the same time in his recent speech to the Empire Club in Toronto where he exposed his credo, Mr. Sharp also made some other remarks which appear contradictory, and are unlikely to be accepted by those who hope to see Canada as a single and united country.

"As the homeland of French Canadians, Quebec has a special place in Confederation; as such it is not, and cannot be, a province like the other provinces of Canada," said Mr. Sharp.

He added, "As a result I have come to expect the province of Quebec to be more jealous of its rights under the British North America Act than other provinces and those expectations have not been disappointed. When Quebec insists upon exercising its constitutional rights and responsibilities, in the pension field or otherwise, I see no reason to think that the country is breaking up."

Despite his unquestioned sincerity, Mr. Sharp is going to find it difficult to convince the majority of Canadians that a society can prosper and remain united in these democratic days if there is to be one set of rules for one group and a different set for another, and fundamentally is that not what Mr. Sharp means when he says that Quebec cannot be a province like the other provinces of Canada?

Theatrical Taste

WHILE HE CONCEDES the excellence of its kind the manager of the new McPherson Playhouse doesn't think the local Smile Show of a standard suitable for this theatre; it doesn't harmonize with the "image" he intends to create.

This early appraisal of the production program scheduled for the community theatre, even more than the denial of engagement to this troupe, will raise apprehension, especially among the citizens who will have to foot the bill if the McPherson doesn't pay its way.

They will wonder what "image" is at the back of Mr. Ellison's mind, and if the Playhouse is to be the preserve of the more aesthetic forms of artistic presentation. They are not likely to take kindly to any idea that "culture" is to be forced down the throats of the community.

One should hope that the dramatic and musical groups of this area would have full scope and opportunity in this new community theatre; this was one of the reasons for its re-building and their contribution to the local weal is not to be gainsaid. But equally this playhouse was designed to cater to entertainment, per se. And the latter is a type of theatrical fare that appeals to many people, probably in fact to the majority.

As manager of a community theatre Mr. Ellison will have difficulty in trying to please everyone or in suiting the varied tastes of the patrons he hopes to attract. But if it is to succeed and serve its purpose the McPherson Playhouse will have to contrive a happy mean, not only to give the town the kind of presentation management may think it should have but also that which the public indicates it favors.

There should be room for the kind of diversity that the many talented local groups can provide.

Carols at City Hall

IT IS A DELIGHTFUL idea to have children from the elementary schools of Victoria singing carols at city hall to start each day for a week before Christmas, with their young voices, joined by those of civic staff members and as many other citizens as accept the invitation to participate, resounding through Centennial Square and the nearby streets.

For most of the children this will be a first real acquaintance and identification with the home of local governance. And bringing the youngsters into the front of the civic picture for an enjoyable experience at an early age is only one beneficial aspect of the arrangement. This is the sort of thing that will go toward making Centennial Square what it is intended to be, and will increasingly become as further amenities come into operation and around it—a lively centre of community life and focal point of civic pride and unity.

This year's carolling by the school choirs, it is thus to be hoped, will be the start of a new Victoria tradition.

Boon to the West

WESTERN CANADA in particular should welcome the introduction by the Canadian National Railways of a "go-anywhere" rail pass for visitors to the country from across the Atlantic at an attractively low price. The passes, at $99 for adults and $50 for children, will enable tourists from continental Europe, Great Britain and Ireland to travel wherever they please on any Canadian National train for 30 days, although paying extra for sleeping or parlor car service.

Just as similar low-cost, unlimited or extensive mileage tickets for visitors to the United Kingdom and some European countries play a part in drawing Canadians abroad, the "Canrailpass" undoubtedly can be counted upon to increase the flow of travellers to Canada. At normal fares, the wide expanses of the country are not too inviting, it must be admitted, to Britons and Europeans whose travel budgets can be assumed to be generally tighter than those of Canadians or Americans.

But besides bidding more people to visit Canada, the passes ought also to have the effect of bringing to the West Coast and the Prairies many who otherwise would confine their visits, and their spending as tourists, to their primary destinations in the east. Anyone who buys such a ticket at least will be tempted to use it to maximum advantage and travel as far as the lines go.

This will be especially beneficial in the year of the Montreal world's fair, but it should have some impact in the meantime also.

Part of a Fierce Struggle

Contemptuous Use of Immunity

By EDWIN BOWEN
Colonist European Correspondent

WHEN the next trunk for Cairo? The jokers ask at Rome's huge, modern Flaminio airport. But this very joke raises fundamental questions important to every free country granting "diplomatic immunity" to foreign diplomats—especially to diplomats of Gamal Abdel Nasser's Egypt.

While the Italian secret service and the secret services of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization work hard to discover all about the man whom accredited Egyptian diplomats tried sending to the Egyptian foreign ministry in Cairo in a trunk marked in English "Diplomatic Mail," many Italians are angry about their own government.

They feel that kicking out the two Egyptian secret service musclemen, who attempted to dispatch the trunk with its live "diplomatic" freight was not enough.

Never since the war was Italy treated with such supreme contempt by a foreign government.

These "diplomats" named Abdel Moneim el-Neklawy and Selim Osman el-Sayed, both very strong, tough men looking like darker-skinned versions of what you see in countless movie and TV thrillers, were first secretaries of the Egyptian embassy in Rome. They took the trunk with their drugged prisoner from the embassy building to Rome airport.

Because the Cairo-bound plane was two hours late, the drug wore off, and Egypt's "diplomatic mail" shouted through his gag.

When the young Italian customs guard Dante Musino demanded that the trunk be opened, one of the "diplomats" remarked it contained musical instruments. "There must be some air left in an accordion," he said.

But Musino called for a policeman. One of the Egyptian "diplomats" attacked him, while the other drove off the small airplane bus containing the trunk. Police caught him and the trunk two miles down the Ostia-Rome road.

According to routine secret service procedure, Nasser's ambassador in Rome, Naguib Hassan, apologized to the Italian foreign ministry, stating that he had known nothing about this incident. An official statement by the Egyptian embassy said it was "completely in the dark"—and the trunk containing the bound, drugged man was not the trunk sent to the airport by the embassy.

But the United Arab Airlines station manager at Rome airport, Antonio Giuntoli, and the driver of the small bus, Alfredo Acanfora, are Kabakas. Giuntoli says the Egyptian embassy in Rome phoned him and asked to have a large diplomatic trunk packed up from the embassy building. Driver Acanfora says the two "diplomats," now expelled, loaded the trunk in his bus at the embassy, and sat on it all the way to the airport. They were followed by a car with two other Arabs who disappeared during the fight.

There cannot be the slightest doubt that the drugged man in the trunk was held prisoner in the embassy. Anyone who believes this was not known by the ambassador, by the Egyptian foreign ministry (to which this "diplomatic mail" was addressed) and probably by Nasser, would also believe that babies are brought by the stork.

Rome's loudest laugh today is caused by the story in the press that the whole affair was a Zionist plot to defame the United Arab Republic.

According to this official Egyptian story, "a Zionist gang managed to replace a diplomatic box sent by the U.A.R. embassy with another box containing a drugged Zionist agent."

This whole crazily melodramatic affair is, of course, a part of the fierce underground war between the secret services of Egypt and Israel. Until now, its most important battlefields were West Germany, Switzerland, and Egypt itself.

As Egypt insists on maintaining a state of war with Israel, which has now lasted more than 16 years, Israel's secret service tries to discover what Egypt may be preparing against Israel, how much military equipment Egypt has, and from where it is obtained. The Israeli secret service also tries to prevent Egypt, wherever possible, from getting foreign help in the war against Israel.

In Israel, the secret service is known as the "Shin Bet." These are the initials of the Hebrew words "Shet Bitakhon" or security service.

When Israeli secret service agents kidnapped the German war criminal Adolf Eichmann from Buenos Aires, the Argentine government upheld formal standards of diplomacy by breaking off diplomatic relations with Israel. (They were restored later.) But the agents who captured Eichmann were not accredited as diplomats. Eichmann was not imprisoned in the Israeli embassy—and no attempt was made to air-freight him to

Te-Aviv in a trunk inscribed "Diplomatic Mail."

Israeli secret service agents caught in Switzerland last year were arrested and tried according to Swiss law. They were not accredited as diplomats—and no diplomatic immunity was claimed for them.

The "Man in the Trunk," his black hair dyed blond, is now known as Mordecai Ben Masoud Louk, a 28-year-old Israeli Jew of Moroccan origin, with a wife and four children in the Tel-Aviv suburb Petach Tikvah. Ostensibly he worked as a tour guide in Naples, which is the southern European headquarters of NATO, and the main Mediterranean base of the U.S. Sixth Fleet.

He has told the Italians that he worked for the Egyptians. In Israel he is described as a despicable traitor, and a criminal wanted for various crimes. This may be true. But it is also exactly what he and the Israeli authorities would say if he were an Israeli agent planted by

Having a Rough Time

By JOHN CROSBY from London

SIR HAROLD Nicholson wrote in some despair—in the preface to the second edition of his masterly little monograph, "Diplomacy": "Since this book was first published in 1939, many serious events have occurred. It appears more than ever necessary to affirm that the art of diplomacy (which is the art of negotiating agreements) is not concerned with diplomats, propaganda or intelligence; its purpose is to create international trust, not to sow international distrust."

Well, that was written in 1949 and even that needs updating. Sir Harold ought to add a few other things that diplomacy is not—kidnapping, drug smuggling, international piracy, espionage, the overthrowing of governments, black market currency deals, sexual blackmail. But would he believe him?

The latest event in Rome's airport had its comic side. When the customs men heard the Moroccan in the trunk moaning and asked the two Egyptian first secretaries what the trunk contained, they said, "Musical instruments." They've done some pretty remarkable things with modern musical instruments, wiring them electronically and all that, but the musical instrument has yet to be invented that can about help in three languages, as this trunk seemed to be doing—so that ended that caper. (How many times do you suppose they have got away with it?)

The Times of London editorializes: "The conduct of international relations has received another degrading blow." Coming on the heels of Nasser's treatment of Thombe, Egyptian diplomacy has reached a nadir that will be pretty hard to top—or perhaps bottom is the word.

Diplomacy has had a rough time of it lately. We have had a see now—an ambassador ought smuggling a quarter of a million dollars worth of heroin into New York. We have seen Trujillo's men carting people off to torture deaths in the Dominican Republic. We have witnessed Eichmann kidnapped in the Argentine and spirited back to Israel on a plane, presumably on a diplomatic mission and therefore immune from seizure.

We have had a code clerk defect from the Russian embassy in Canada who revealed, what everyone long suspected, that all Russian embassies are just spy headquarters.

Those are just the things we know about. Before we get too high and mighty about the bad lot of things that have happened, let us reflect that the American CIA, operating many times out of embassies, has been engaged in all sorts of international thuggery in Cuba, Turkey, all over the Middle East and Far East, overthrowing governments here and there. (No one pretends the CIA are diplomats, but they've certainly used diplomatic immunity more than once.)

The Times comments sadly: "When a diplomat is caught in a squalid crime acting as an official agent, he destroys the trust which is an essential basis for international dealings."

Was there ever much? Sir Harold writes in his delightful monograph that the original deity of the diplomats was the god Hermes, a very clever fellow. "On the day of his birth, he stole 50 head of cattle from his brother Apollo and then (having hidden them in a cave) returned to sleep peacefully in his cradle. This resourcefulness was warmly applauded by Zeus, who thereafter employed Hermes on the most delicate diplomatic missions, including the murder of Argos."

"He came to be regarded as the intermediary between the upper and lower worlds; yet, although he was widely popular, he was not deeply respected. Later diplomats have often regretted that someone less brilliant but more reliable was not chosen as their tutelary deity."

Sir Harold also wrote prophetically in 1939: "The worst kind of diplomatists are missionaries, fanatics, and lawyers." I first written in the margin in my own hand: "John Foster Dulles was all three." As a matter of fact, the Dulles concept of American diplomacy as a sort of universal missionary uplift forcing people from Viet Nam to the Quai d'Orsay to wear clothes and adopt ideas they don't like, under the messianic conviction that we know what's best for them, has by no means vanished from the U.S. state department to this very day.

New Fashion

Utmost Restraint

By CASSANDRA from London

I HAVE always been interested in printed letter-headings both for business and private residences.

You can tell a lot from them. In the old days in commerce, you used to get a good deal of flamboyance that insisted on telling you how many telephone lines there were, how many telegraphic codes were used, who the directors were, and what range of potted salmon-and-shrimp paste, ships, or variety of steam-coal was available.

Nowadays, the trend is in the opposite direction—the terse, take-it-or-leave-it letter headings.

One I saw recently in New York was restrained to the point of mystification. In tiny elegant black type on thick watermarked paper it just said: "One Thousand Park Avenue."

It didn't say who lived there. It didn't say what went on there. And it disdained to mention that Park Avenue is in New York City.

This monosyllabic trend is now being developed by people prominently in the public eye like actors, TV stars, and successful burglars.

They have gone one further than printing their addresses or telephone numbers. They just have their name engraved at the top of the paper and nothing more—like "Napoleon"—or better still, "N." To their way of thinking, Almighty could be accused of ostentation in correspondence if he used more than the one word: "God."

A friend of mine who lives in Vancouver and is a rising public relations man (he would be equally happy promoting the interests of a fleet of dredges, a brand of rum, or Barnum and Bailey's Circus) has recently had his letter heading altered to be in the new fashion. He wrote to me proudly pointing out the chasteness of the type and the general air of clinical asceticism that it gave to his business, which is basically bawling through a megaphone without the customers noticing that he is hiding the megaphone.

He said: "I guess I've captured the new elusive delicate mood, sincere yet diffident, doncha think?" I do.

One of the many things I find hard to understand in 1964 is the desire to run amok; to have a good old smash-up; to relax with a good old punch-up.

This sort of gorilla behavior is increasing. It varies from people stealing and plundering in pubs and hotels for souvenirs and leaving the taps running in the wash rooms in the hope that they will overflow and do damage, to the tearing apart of railway carriages by football supporters.

Mr. George Dow, a divisional manager of British Railways, has justly and properly cancelled the special football trains that run from Stoke-on-Trent. Recently on one of these jaunts the communication cord was pulled, lamps, lampshades and fire extinguishers were torn from their fittings, fireworks were thrown and foul language was almost the sole means of communication.

A few weeks earlier the Stoke football gorillas celebrated their virility by smashing up a special train from Stoke to Birmingham with such thoroughness that every coach was damaged and had to be taken out of service for repair.

We, the taxpayers, foot the bill.

What I expect to hear next, if it has not been said already by some monumental ass, is that the withdrawal of the special football trains is an affront to the gallant sportsmen who support Stoke City.

Medicare Costs

I SHOULD like to take issue with Mr. Street's article "Full medicare too costly" as I feel he has conveniently omitted some very important points.

1. In estimating the cost of full medicare he has forgotten that we are already spending many millions in government subsidies to hospitals, civil servants and the payments to insurance plans to say nothing of the direct payments to doctors.

2. The members of the Hall Commission were not starry-eyed socialists but able and eminent Canadians who travelled from east to west, interviewed thousands of persons and thoroughly examined the problem of medicare. I doubt very much that either Dr. Banks or Mr. Street have anything but a superficial knowledge of the subject.

3. It is true that the majority of the province is covered by some plan or another but some 30 per cent do not have any coverage and the balance only have limited coverage.

4. Satisfactory plans operate efficiently in most countries of western Europe and these nations are not, by any means, as wealthy as Canada. Denmark, a nation of very limited natural resources, instituted her first plan in 1898 and had complete coverage in 1921.

5. If there is any doubt about the wishes of the people of this province, I suggest the democratic solution of a referendum. The only time this province was allowed to express its views on this subject (in the Pattullo regime) they voted overwhelmingly in favor of a health plan.

6. The Liberals included a national health plan in their platform as far back as 1919.

7. I agree with Mr. Martin that the people of this province will not accept a "means test."

Today In History

By The Canadian Press

Almost 500 persons died in a "flash fire" at Boston's Coconut Grove nightclub, 22 years ago today—in 1942. Dozens of persons were crushed to death or jammed too tightly to escape the flames as the blaze roared through the packed pleasure spot in seconds. Nightclub singer Bill Payne saved 10 patrons by leading them into a huge ice-box in the building's basement.

1916—Germany made its first air attack on London in the First World War.

1919—Lady Astor became the first woman ever elected to the British House of Commons.

First World War: Fifty years ago today—in 1914—an attempt to enslave Germans near Lutz by the Russians was begun; Russian armies occupied Czechoslovakia in the Austrian province of Bukovina and completed control of Carpathian mountain passes leading to Hungary.

Second World War: Twenty-five years ago today—in 1939—British planes raided the German seaplane base at Borkum; British sources said up to 45 German submarines had been sunk since the war began; Russia discarded its non-aggression pact with Finland; the French claimed capture of two German frontiers.

Those of us who were associated with Gerry Gossley's early efforts in forming the war-time Smile Show at Patricia Bay some 22 years ago, will be the first to record a wish for its retention here; realizing, as we do, that the opening of the McPherson theatre will give an opportunity to Gossley and his gifted artists.

It is also understandable that other producers will want to share the limelight of the newly reconstructed theatre in its reopening season but surely some consideration should be given to this well established and widely known Victoria entertainment, with an early settlement as to dates and length of booking.

Victoria may bask in the reflected glory of the Smile Show in the interior as it did in the Korean war tour and other journeys with nothing but good to be gained by this popular leader and his troupe in making a mark in distant places, since "A prophet is not without honor . . . However, courtesy and prompt action cost nothing, so the city might act with despatch in deciding dates now, rather than to keep the interior organizers waiting for a decision; end of December, my eye!"

Our Readers' Views

To be considered for publication in whole or in part, letters must be on subjects of general interest and be signed with pen-name, must be accompanied by writer's name and address. Preference will be given to those that are brief.

8. The Secords won the last election not because the people did not want a health plan but because they had a dynamic leader, unlimited funds, black-top highways, parks and other frills. The fact that we still pay the highest telephone and power rates in North America, based on population, have very inadequate hospital and other social services apparently meets with the approval of the voters. However, I believe the NDP made a great mistake in saying that they would introduce a health plan without premiums. This is basically unsound and frightened many voters. Incidentally the Secords only obtained a minority popular vote.

9. Our province is endowed with great riches far in excess of Saskatchewan and still that province can and does operate a health plan and Mr. Thatcher would not dare scrap it.

A full medicare plan will come to B.C. and all Canada in spite of the opposition of the doctors and Mr. Street.

M. P. B. WRIXON,
2530 Lansdowne Road.

Smile Show

The report that we must wait until the end of December for a decision from the city and that we may lose the Smile Show to the Okanagan next summer, will sound strange to the local tourist trade and to patrons who look forward to this annual entertainment.

Those of us who were associated with Gerry Gossley's early efforts in forming the war-time Smile Show at Patricia Bay some 22 years ago, will be the first to record a wish for its retention here; realizing, as we do, that the opening of the McPherson theatre will give an opportunity to Gossley and his gifted artists.

Secrets of Marriage Remain Unpublished

LONDON (UPI)—An article by the Duke of Argyll about his ex-wife will not be published as scheduled in a Sunday newspaper this weekend because it contains "confidences of marriage."

The undertaking was given in the high court here Friday because a hearing of the ex-wife's plea for an order forbidding publication has not been completed.

The judge said—before counsel for the Duke and the newspaper The People gave him promise—that he was inclined to grant a temporary injunction banning the publication.

Resignations

Ferry Promotions Bring Protest

B.C. Ferry Authority is only considering one protest over its promotion policy at the present time, general manager M. F. Aldous said Friday.

He was commenting on a report that two captains and four first officers had resigned within the last two months over decisions of the board that considers promotions.

Mr. Aldous said the resignations were for various reasons. "Many of them quit for personal reasons."

Most recent resignation was last week.

Ab Kemp, assistant general secretary of the B.C. Government Employees Association, said his association is protesting the promotion policy to the civil service commission.

He would not comment on reports that ferry employees are annoyed that British-trained officers appear to be favored over Canadian-trained men.

Israeli Liner 15 Miles South Of Position Radioed Ashore

NEW YORK (UPI)—The U.S. Coast Guard reported Friday that the Israeli luxury liner Shalom made a 15-mile error in reporting its position immediately after sailing through the Norwegian tanker Stolt Dagali. The collision took the lives of 19 of the tanker's crew.

The error was revealed as Norwegian and Israeli maritime officials considered setting up a binational admiralty court to fix the blame for the accident early Thursday during a thick fog.

BRING TOWED BACK — The Shalom, one of the newest and most modern ships in the world, knifed through the Norwegian tanker and sent its stern section to the bottom. The 300-foot bow section was being towed back to port.

The Shalom limped back to New York under its own power. It had a 40-foot gash in its bow. The tug Cynthia Moran, towing the bow section of the tanker, was due in lower New York Bay early today.

The 24 survivors from the tanker, rescued by Coast Guard cutters and helicopters, and a lifeboat from the Shalom, were preparing to fly home to Norway.

Immediately after the accident, the Coast Guard said the Shalom reported a position of Lat. 40 degrees, 14 minutes, North, and Long. 73 degrees, 44 minutes, West.

This, the Coast Guard said, actually put the ship 15 miles south of the position radioed. It said the Stolt Dagali gave the correct position in its distress signal.

Riot Point

Buddhists Close Centre

SAIGON, Viet Nam (UPI) — Army troops moved into Saigon Friday to enforce official proclamation of martial law as Prime Minister Tran Van Huong won the first round in the struggle against anti-government rioters.

The nation's powerful religious leaders closed down the national Buddhist centre which had been the rallying point for four days of violent street demonstrations by mobs demanding Huong's ouster.

Observers said Huong may have strengthened his position further by promoting Maj. Gen. Nguyen Khanh and Duong Van (Big) Minh to the rank of lieutenant generals, promotions were announced Friday.

NO REAL POWER

Military strongman Khanh is commander-in-chief of the armed forces and has a veto over government policies in the fields of security and defence. Minh has no real military power but is popular with the Buddhists.

Buddhist leaders distributed leaflets denying that they had anything to do with the rioting. A huge signboard was posted at the centre announcing it was closed "to avoid large gatherings being exploited into demonstrations to the detriment of the prestige of the Buddhist church," said Mr. Dielenbaker.

despite earlier agreement by Pearson, to give unanimous consent to photographs being taken on the floor of the House of Commons.

Pearson was absent from the Commons for a speaking engagement in Winnipeg.

WEEK OF CRISIS

As the day's sitting began and members were poised for the latest development in a crisis-riddled week, speaker Alan MacNaughton opened with a request for Canadian teachers "badly in need of lively authentic material to teach the subject of government in Canada."

MacNaughton explained the National Film Board wanted to help the teachers by taking colored photographs of the Commons in action.

"There would have to be one photographer on the floor of the Commons and two others in the galleries above."

SPECIAL PERMISSION

Under normal circumstances no one is allowed on the Commons floor when the House is in session except members. Photographs can be taken from the galleries only with special permission.

In this instance MacNaughton said unanimous consent would be needed from all members. And he added that he had already received this consent in advance from Mr. Pearson. Opposition leader Diefenbaker and other opposition leaders.

"No," boomed Mr. Hellyer, jumping to his feet.

He said it would be "quite permissible" for photographers to take pictures from the galleries, but to allow a cameraman on the floor of the Commons would set "a most unfortunate precedent."

"You disagree with the prime minister?" asked New Democrat Stanley Knowles.

The Speaker tried for consent twice more, but Mr. Hellyer refused.

"This is a subject," said Mr. Hellyer, "which concerns members of Parliament as individuals, and, as an individual member avoid large gatherings being exploited into demonstrations to the detriment of the prestige of the Buddhist church," said Mr. Dielenbaker.

Rosalind, Roderick and seared sleeve

On Brother's Shirt

Quick-Thinking Girl Beats Out Flames

By BOB PETHICK

A nine-year-old Saanich girl who found her younger brother with his shirt sleeve on fire Friday told him to lie on the ground while she stamped out the blaze.

The boy, Roderick Logan, 7, panicked after an incinerator flared up and set fire to his shirt sleeve in the backyard of his home at 4412 Wilkinson Road, about 5 p.m.

TAUGHT IN SCHOOL

His sister, Rosalind, later said, "They taught us in school that if someone's clothes catch fire the best way to put it out is to make them roll on the ground." Roderick was playing with him in the backyard where his father, John Logan, was burning some cardboard boxes.

He decided to help by throwing on some more fuel but the flames flared up and before he could pull his arm away his shirt sleeve caught fire.

FLAMES SPREAD

He tried to get the fire out but the flames spread up the sleeve. He yelled.

By the time Rosalind arrived Roderick had his arm partially out of the sleeve. He burned one hand slightly trying to pull the shirt off. When he lay down she stamped on the empty sleeve.

FONDSER ANALYSIS

Mr. Logan said he is thinking of having the shirt fabric analyzed.

The material look like flannelette with a synthetic feel to it. It burned with a fast, steady, blue flame when later set on fire in an experiment.

Roderick still looked a little shaky three hours after the incident. All the time he was talking to a reporter he kept looking at his arm.

Traffic Snarled As Blizzard Hits Winnipeg

WINNIPEG (UPI) — Four inches of snow covered Winnipeg Friday night and snarled traffic in a massive tie-up as the city struggled against the impact of the first blizzard of the season.

The storm swirled up from North Dakota with snow beginning to fall overnight on Thursday and then continuing throughout the day yesterday.

HUGE DRIFTS

Fairly heavy winds piled it into extensive drifts in some areas, particularly in the country, and the RCMP warned motorists to stay off the roads. A huge traffic jam developed all over the city at the evening rush hour as motorists struggled on streets that were packed with the fresh blown snow.

BUMPER TO BUMPER

At some points on major traffic arteries, cars were backed up bumper to bumper for distances as great as six blocks.

Transportation schedules for the airlines, the railways and the bus companies were partially disrupted by the storm.

Most flights in and out of Winnipeg international airport were suffering at least minor delays while train and bus schedules were similarly disrupted.

He Never Denied A Fender

Victoria Deputy Fire Chief Jim Robinson retired Friday night with a record of driving fire trucks and cars for 39 years and never denying a fender.

Victoria born, Deputy Chief Robinson is from a pioneer family that came to Victoria from Scotland in the 1880s.

He joined the fire department in 1925 at the age of 21, and during his years of service has wheeled every piece of equipment ever owned by the fire department.

About 150 people attended a retirement party in the Ingham Hotel.

The deputy was presented with a gold badge from Local 730 of the International Fire Fighters Association by Al Adamson.

100 Rebels Claimed

SAIGON (Reuters) — South Vietnamese forces claimed Friday to have killed more than 100 Communist Viet Cong guerrillas in a major victory in Quang Tri province, near the border with Laos.

Air force planes bombed the Communists, and armored cars and other reinforcements supported the government force.

Scandinavian Trio Invited to Kremlin

COPENHAGEN (UPI) — The prime ministers of Norway, Sweden and Denmark, who jointly questioned the Soviet decision to dismiss Premier Khrushchev, have been invited to Russia by its new leaders.

All three men have accepted the invitations. It was announced Friday, but no visit date has been set.

Norway's Einar Gerhardsen, Sweden's Tage Erlander and Denmark's Jens Otto Krag met at Erlander's country residence last month to discuss Khrushchev's ouster and agreed the former Soviet leader should have been treated better.

GOOD JOB

They reportedly agreed Khrushchev had done a good job in liberalizing the Soviet Union after the Stalin era and hoped the new Russian leaders, Leonid Brezhnev and Alexei K.

Wet Student Proves His Point

LIVERPOOL (UPI)—Henry Osahon, a 27-year-old Nigerian student who said that Liverpool University contained "the largest collection of ugly, shabbily dressed and ill-behaved girls in Britain," met six of the girls soon after and was promptly thrown into a pool of murky water.

The girls, enraged by his statements in a university magazine, told on Henry as he walked through the college grounds. They dragged him 80 yards, removed his trousers, and tossed him into three feet of water.

Drying out at his home, Henry said he felt his point about ill-behavior was proved.

But he added ruefully, "At least they were decent enough to leave my trousers behind when they dashed off afterwards."

Rotarian Condemns 'Berserk Liberty'

By A. H. MURPHY

Freedom we must have but when freedom goes berserk, as it has in the case of a segment of North America's youth, it becomes a menace, says Dr. John Richards, governor of Rotary district 502, who has been visiting Victoria.

The Seattle dentist, here to discuss plans for the district 502 annual conference in Victoria April 11 to 13 next year, is concerned about the liberties which have been converted to licences on the North American scene.

"Too much freedom for youth has apparently resulted in a wave of destruction which is most alarming," said Dr. Richards.

PREFER TO LOAF

Freedom gone berserk is manifested on the employment scene also, said the Rotary leader.

He cited California where, of many thousands of men put out of work by automation, pitifully few enrolled in courses which would enable them to obtain jobs.

The vast majority preferred to loaf.

The concept was again shown in the "constitutional tradition" of race, creed and color.

It was made clear in eastern Canada, where a minority linguistic group was capable of creating a situation where the life of the Queen was in jeopardy and again in Philadelphia where 1,000 Negroes were able to imperil the well-being of a great city.

Nanaimo Arbitration

School Board Wins a Round

VANCOUVER (CP) — A Nanaimo application which was the first of a series of court actions challenging the appointments of various teacher salary arbitrators was dismissed Friday by Mr. Justice Nathan Nemetz.

The Nanaimo District Teachers Association had sought a declaration that James Campbell should not be permitted to act as arbitrator between the teachers and Nanaimo school board on grounds he may be biased.

The association claimed Campbell, a member of the Gulf Islands school board, has interested himself in salary questions of his and other school districts.

IN ACCORD

It also claimed he is in accord with a suggestion that teachers should serve a greater number of years before reaching the maximum salary, one of the major points of contention in arbitration.

Mr. Justice Nemetz held, after Mr. Campbell was questioned before him, that Mr. Campbell was not biased.

Similar actions have been started by the teachers' associations of Keremeos and Kitimat.

Haase Case

Cabinet Stalls Hanging

OTTAWA (UPI)—The cabinet has "postponed" the death sentence of Lawrence Herman Haase, scheduled to be hanged Dec. 1, to May 18 to allow for a mental examination of the accused.

Haase was convicted at Kamloops, B.C., March 6, 1964, for the capital murder of Donna King and the non-capital murder of her twin sister, Diana.

The announcement said that in "accordance with established practice" the department of justice asked a psychiatrist to examine Haase.

MENTAL REPORT
The mental report would be used by the cabinet in determining whether the death sentence should be commuted to life imprisonment.

The psychiatrist said that a "proper mental examination" would take several months, so the date of the execution was postponed.

The case will be considered by the cabinet again when the mental examination is completed.

Refugees Go Wrong Way

BRUNSWICK (AP)—Two East German refugees lost their way among the barbed wire barriers along the Iron Curtain border and by mistake doubled back into Communist territory, Western border police reported Friday.

The refugees finally managed to get across the border.

Mars Probe

Problems Delay Rocket

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP)—Spacecraft communication problems Friday forced postponement of an attempt to launch Mariner IV to Mars to take pictures and probe scientific mysteries.

The National Aeronautics and Space Administration described the trouble as an apparent temporary drop in signal strength in the spacecraft receiving system. A statement said it appeared to be associated with ground-support equipment rather than with the payload.

The launching was rescheduled for Saturday in a period between 8:22 a.m. and 12:33 p.m.

SHORT TIME

The launch crew had only a three-hour 15-minute favorable period ending at 12:41 p.m. EST in which to fire the Atlas-Agena rocket to achieve the desired trajectory. When the trouble would not be corrected in time, the shot was called off for the day.

The rocket is to propel Mariner IV across 326,000,000 miles of space for a brief encounter with the Red Planet July 14 next.

Canadian Army

The infantry battalions of 650 men each will be the 1st Battalion, Canadian Guards, Picton, Ont.; 1st Battalion, Queen's Own Rifles, Victoria; and 1st Battalion, Royal 22nd Regiment, Camp Valcartier, Que.

The 2nd Battalion, Black Watch, will join the force when it returns to Camp Gagetown, N.B., next year from Europe. It will be succeeded overseas by the 1st Battalion, Royal 22nd.

The special force will be commanded by Brig. J. A. Dextraze who now commands 2nd Brigade. It will be specially trained and equipped for service anywhere in the world.

Alberta Road Act

'The Toughest'

EDMONTON (CP) — Highway Minister Taylor said Friday Alberta's vehicles and highway traffic act is the toughest in Canada.

The act provides a mandatory six-month suspension of a licence for persons convicted of impaired driving. This isn't done in any other province, he said.

Mr. Taylor was replying to an Edmonton magistrate who said the penalties section of the act "was out of step with reality."

The highways minister said the legislature felt the licence suspension would be a greater deterrent than heavy fines.

"Fines just mean the rich can pay and the poor cannot," he added.

New Payola Probe Ordered in U.S.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Federal Communications Commission Friday ordered a closed-door investigation of "payola" and hidden advertising in broadcasting.

The investigation by the seven-man commission follows what the FCC described as "allegations from many sources" that payola—the taking of payments for favors on the air—continues to exist.

The same applies to what the FCC calls "plugola"—hidden advertising in broadcasting.

The FCC said it also has complaints that some record companies and other firms have been making direct and indirect secret payments to disc jockeys and others "for playing or influencing the playing of records" and secret payments for including certain matter in their broadcasts.

Reporter Says:

Singers' Departure 'Good Riddance'

VANCOUVER (UPI) — "Good riddance," was the way Vancouver Province reporter Ormond Turner Friday described the departure of Britain's No. 2 pop music group, the Dave Clark Five, from a press conference some two minutes after it started.

The group, in town for a one-night stand at the Vancouver Forum, ran into difficulty with Turner when they arrived at the meeting Thursday some 40 minutes late. He asked them why they were late.

Turner said, "By the time (Clark) had bounced off the walls (at the conference room) in his outrage that a common Canuck reporter had dared to question his tardiness, I had been called 'rude,' 'a pig,' 'no gentleman,' and had been ordered to leave the room."

BRANDISHED FIST

"Clark leaped to his feet, brandished a rather large fist under my nose, and shouted that such a question would never be asked in England."

"When I said that an Englishman usually tried to keep his appointments, Clark got even madder," Turner said. "It was all rather silly."

"The quintet, coasting into oblivion in the wake of the Beatles, appeared at the Forum Thursday night and played to half a house, about 3,000 persons in a 5,300-seat building," Turner said.

BEHIND THE GLASS

By Jim Tang

SENIOR? It seemed that a curling void was filled when it was announced earlier this year that there would be a Canadian seniors' curling championship. Certainly among the keenest in the game are the veterans of another curling era and a Canadian championship was something that had been delayed too long. But the one they're going to stage still leaves the veterans without a championship of their own.

After considerable messing about, it has been finally decided that the seniors' championship will be open to anyone who has reached his 55th birthday by Jan. 1. Tossed out was the original decision that the minimum age limit would be 55 but that rinks must aggregate 240 years, the suggestion of the B.C. Curling Association. Getting nowhere was the thought of the Pacific Coast Curling Association that the minimum age should be 60 years.

It appears that the B.C. associations were by themselves in trying to make this a real veterans' championship. In fact, it's reported that Alberta wanted the age limit lowered to 45, arguing that the average age of Brier curlers is 32-33 years and that curlers past 40 could not be expected to have much chance to win the Brier Tankard.

This is probably partially correct but lowering the age limit to 35 certainly gives those past 60 just as little chance in the seniors' event as now constituted. To make it even worse, participants do not need to belong to any seniors' association, nor is it necessary for rinks to be formed within a single curling club.

It's really too bad. What curling has needed has been a Dominion championship for the game's real old-timers—the fellows who pioneered the game before it acquired its present popularity. That's what it still needs.

FROM THE TOTEM: Island rinks have been doing themselves proud at Vancouver's Totem Borspiel with Grant Macdonald of Courtenay and Glen Harper of Duncan both defeating Matt Baldwin, the three-time Canadian champion.

Macdonald did it, 7-4, in the primary Totem event on Thursday and Harper, ahead 6-5 coming home and with last-rock edge, did it last night in the 32s of the Pacific event.

Going best of all has been Gar Taylor's Victoria combination of O. J. Powell, Ken Sturrock and Laurie Perlette, who won five in a row to reach the semi-finals of the Totem event and qualify for the "championship" event, made up of the 16 rinks which reach the finals of the Totem and Evergreen events.

Taylor, who best Macdonald in the eights, came a cropper yesterday when he was beaten by John French of Vancouver, who took a close one, 12-11. French had earlier beaten Harper, 7-4, and is one of the unbeaten ships. The other is Trev Fisher of New Westminster, who upset Lyall Dagg, Canadian champion, 9-4, en route to the Totem final and a matching 6-0 record. Barney Holm of Nanaimo joined Taylor and Macdonald in the championship event by reaching the semi-finals of the Evergreen event. He lost there to Howie Christopherson of Vancouver, who meets Lynn Mason of Burnaby in the final.

Bill Osborne, former Port Alberni curler, is in the semi-finals of the Burnaby (No. 3) event with Bob Mills and Ray Dagg of Vancouver and Jake Flock of Abbotsford. Keith Dagg of Victoria is in the eights of the Capilano event and Earl Ewert, former Maple curler now playing out of Alberni Valley Curling Club, is still alive in the Seymour event.

Play in the championship event was due to start last night with Taylor meeting Bud Long of Capilano and Macdonald and Holm tangling in the first round.

EXTRA END: Jim Narasim, back with the same crew—Frank Hickey, Ken Coomer and Neil Pennington—which won the Island zone playdowns last season, is being challenged at the club level by at least nine Alberni Valley Curling Club rinks. Entered besides Narasim are Albert Leyenhorst, John Hart, Wayne Reid, Harry Sturrock, Jules Wesenick, Bob Cummings, Bill Wood, Roland Harrison and Earl Ewert, who has moved to the Island from Marpole. . . and six rinks—Ray Morissette, Evelyn Sturrock, Elsie Paul, Marg Olson, Edna Heather and Kay Dick, late of Comox Valley—are entered in the AVCC ladies' playdowns, which start on Sunday. . . Bob McCubbin, formerly of Vancouver, is another Island newcomer and could be heard from in the men's playdowns at Nanaimo. . . Victoria Curling Club members said goodbye to Gary and Sharon Leibel at a little party last night. Gary leaves this weekend to take over duties as lemmaker at the new Qualicum Beach club. . . Duncan Curling Club will stage a men's 16-rink invitational bonspiel next Saturday. Among those entered are Glen Harper of the host club, Gar Taylor and Tony Gatski of Victoria, Roy Alina of Allan's, The Barbers of Campbell River and Dave Patterson of Comox Valley. It had been hoped that Lyall Dagg would be able to take part but other commitments have him in Winnipeg at the time and the mainland may be represented by Ray Withers and Howie Christopherson. Cash prizes of $120 and $70 in the first event and $60 and $30 in the second are offered. . . Prizewinners in the AVCC ladies' bonspiel were:

"A"—Helen Hoffman, AVCC; Edna Souther, AVCC; Ruth Jackson, Victoria; Kay Morissette, AVCC.

"B"—Eleanor Gulsten, AVCC; Doreen Sherman, AVCC; Sybil Magnusson, AVCC; Doreen Ferguson, AVCC.

"C"—Dorothy Fukuyama, Victoria; Vi Holmlund, AVCC; Sheila Stewart, Victoria; Polly Kerjstedt, AVCC.

"D"—Vi Chateau, Vancouver; Deen Berard, AVCC; Polly Dorothy, AVCC; Kay Dick, AVCC.

Champs Still Swing In Saanichton Tourney

All defending champions were still alive last night as play reached the semi-finals in the annual Saanichton Badminton tournament, being played at Brentwood Community Hall.

Bob Hunt still had the chance to retain his men's singles title and the doubles honors he shared with Ed Hedley, Muriel and Pat Knott were in the finals of the ladies' doubles and Jean Massey and Lloyd Park were playing in the mixed doubles.

Yesterday's results and tonight's draw:

Men's Singles—B. Chubb def. B. Hunt 15-12, 15-10, 15-8.
Men's Doubles—E. Hedley and G. Knott def. J. Massey and L. Park 15-10, 15-8.

Lions Wait Whole Year For This One

TORONTO (UPI)—They say it only hurts for a little while, but the British Columbia Lions will never believe it.

The western champion Lions, who meet the Hamilton Tiger-Cats today in the Grey Cup game, have had four years of hurting from defeats at the hands of Ralph Sazio's defending champions. It reached a peak just 363 days ago when the Cats whipped the Lions, 21-10, on a dismal Nov. 30 at Empire Stadium.

The Lions have been pointing for a return engagement ever since and nobody was happier than Dave Skrien and company when the Ticats swept to their fourth consecutive eastern title.

THEY'RE READY
Now the Lions get their chance, and despite the bookmakers who have installed the Cats at eight-point favorites to repeat last year's victory, Skrien figures he has his club ready, willing, and able.

"We won't make the same mistake we made last year," he said. "A lot of our boys suffered from stage fright playing in their first Grey Cup game. But now we've got one under our belts and I think we're ready for them."

The Lions, despite a gruelling schedule that has seen them play 22 games since mid-July, are healthy physically and healthy mentally.

"We've got a good spirit," he said. "We've also got a lot of pride. We know there's a job to be done and we want to do it."

Meanwhile, in Hamilton, Sazio also is stressing the importance of mental preparedness on the eve of the battle.

CATS PREPARED
"My players don't have to be reminded of the importance of the game," he said. "We won't have any trouble being mentally prepared."

Sazio's Cats aren't as healthy physically as he would like them to be. Safety man Jackie Simpson has leg trouble and likely won't dress. Veteran Ralph Goldston will replace him with Joe Zuger playing Goldston's corner linebacking spot.

Result moved Seals within two points of the fifth-place Victoria Maple Leafs and prevented Los Angeles from moving past Portland Buckaroos into third place.

Haley, who scored the first two goals on plays with Panagabko, and Panagabko, who scored the fourth on a play with Haley, led Seals into a 4-0 first-period lead.

Leafs Bow to Canucks Face Totems Tonight

VANCOUVER—Victoria

Maple Leafs return home tonight to face the league-leading Seattle Totems with a 2-2 record for their longest road trip of the Western Hockey League season.

But it could just as easily have been 3-1. Coach Rudy Pikaus' scrappy Islanders fought their way back to a 3-3 tie in the third period here Friday night only to lose on a lucky late goal by Vancouver Canucks.

Final score was 5-3 with Canucks shooting into an open net for the clincher with eight seconds left.

Trailing, 0-2, after the first period and 1-3 after the second, the Maple Leafs got back into the game on Milan Marcetta's 12th and 13th goals. But the fine comeback was nullified when Billy McNeill, trying to pass out from behind the Victoria goal, received credit for his second goal of the evening when the puck deflected in off goalkeeper Al Millar's equipment.

FAST GAME

In one of the fastest and most exciting games of the season here, Canucks took a 2-0 lead with goals less than two minutes apart early in the first period.

Larry Keenan, out as a penalty-killer, got one back in the fourth minute of the second period and the Leafs, dangerous all evening when shorthanded, had had luck in missing the equalizer while Steve Wituk served a penalty. Lou Jankowski went in alone, pulled Gilles Villeneuve out, and then saw his shot come out of the inside of the post.

TOO STRENUOUS

Howie Hughes' restored Canucks two-goal lead at 11:50 with Danny Belisle of the Leafs drawing a misconduct penalty for protesting too strenuously about the scoring shots.

Again the Leafs came back and again they ran into bad luck. John Sleser had his ticketed shot hit a post and Bob McCusker drew a penalty for keeping Wituk away from the rebound by tripping the Victoria winger.

QUICK ONE

Leafs failed to score during McCusker's penalty and a succeeding two-minute sentence served by Bill Burega but they wasted no time as the third period opened.

Sandy Hucel fired a sizzler which Villeneuve deflected off a post but Marcetta was there to blaze the rebound over the prone goalkeeper.

The Victoria attack slowed then as Wituk and Fred Hucel served penalties, then started again. Dunc McCallum got a penalty for pulling down Rolfe Wilcox on a promising thrust and Les Hunt followed McCallum into the penalty box 65 seconds later by getting a holding penalty as the Leafs pressed.

Marcetta was right on the spot again, squaring matters just 22 seconds after Hunt had left the ice. Then came McNeill's goal and after several near-misses on gangling attacks, the clincher as Dave Duke intercepted a pass by Keenan and shot into the open goal.

Tired Fans Stagger Into Town

TORONTO (CP)—Western football fans, tipsy from travel fatigue and all-night parties, trickled into Toronto Friday to give organizers of Grey Cup festivities somebody to cheer with at last.

Didelant and pipe bands, sidewalk barbecue chefs and bowler-hatted greeters from the Toronto Junior Board of Trade almost outnumbered and certainly outshouted the fans arriving for the Grey Cup game today between British Columbia Lions and Hamilton Tiger-Cats.

About 200 western fans arrived early Friday on an 11-car CPR train that included five extra sleepers from the West and an additional coach from Sudbury, Ont. Between 150 and 200 more—including the Winnipeg Police Pipe Band and 53 Lions cheerleaders—arrived on three CNR trains in the afternoon.

The 500 places reserved for westerners at a welcome luncheon set up by the Ontario government were slow filling. An hour after the scheduled starting time, while provincial government ministers in chef's hats dined out food, several of the 50 tables remained empty.

Peter McArthur, assistant manager of the 1,600-room Royal York Hotel, where the pre-game dinners, public parties and dances are held, said the hotel had received 200 cancellations from the West.

"It's much quieter this year," said Mr. McArthur. "But you never know. Two years ago it was like a bomb and suddenly all hell broke loose."

Despite the quiet, hotel staff began moving furniture and flower vases out of the lobby a couple of hours before simultaneous Grey Cup dinners were held in two banquet halls and celebrants began arriving for a dance at which Miss Grey Cup was being chosen.

LOTS OF MOOCHERS
A mobile barbecue handed out 1,500 hamburgers on downtown streets in two hours during the afternoon, but beribboned fans were outnumbered by youngsters and moochers.

One of several dozen lads selling black-and-orange Lions ribbons and gold- and black Hamilton colors around the hotels reported business was slack.

"Things gets tamer every year," said a member of the Junior Board of Trade waiting at Union Station for somebody to greet with a plastic packet of maps and cigarettes, a bottle opener and headache pills.

"They used to just surge through here the day before the game," he said, trying to hand a package to a bewildered young mother with two children and a big suitcase.

One fan wearing a Stetson managed a weak "hooray," whispered "Where am I?" then collapsed over a railing.

Most of the fans on the train were male and the few girls who made the trip hurried through the station lobby looking for the nearest taxi.

Montreal Girl Miss Grey Cup
TORONTO (CP)—Susan Brown, 20-year-old Miss Montreal Alouette, was chosen Friday night as Miss Grey Cup to preside over the annual football festivities here today.

Carroll Taylor, 17, Miss Calgary Stampeder, was second and Holly Vane Evans, Miss Winnipeg Blue Bomber, third in the voting.

Eight football writers pick the Lions and seven like Hamilton. Two western "turn-coats" are Denny Boyd of the Sun and Lloyd Saunders of Saskatchewan.

Hamilton's Ralph Sazio is the best coach in Canada, in the opinion of all the other coaches in the CFL. His selection was announced at last night's Grey Cup dinner.

Today's referee is Paul Dojak of Regina. Three umpires, one more than usual for league games, are Seymour Wilson of Hamilton, Taylor Patterson of Regina and Ray Boucher, Ottawa. Al Dryburgh of Winnipeg is head linesman and Bob Shepherd, Toronto, is field judge.

Clair Not Hired

Argos Balk At Free Rein

TORONTO (CP)—Frank Clair's ambition to return to his old job as head coach of Toronto Argonauts of the Eastern Football Conference was shattered Friday on the issue of complete control of the club's players.

Managing director Lew Hayman refused Clair's demands on this vital point and said negotiations had broken off. Clair, 46, will likely remain as coach of Ottawa Rough Riders.

The decision to accept a new three-year contract with Ottawa will be made by Clair at a 10 a.m. meeting today with Rider officials. They set that time deadline for Clair either to sign with Argos or to accept their offer.

Clair, disappointed over his failure to reach agreement with Hayman, said in an interview he will accept the Riders' new contract.

"It's been a good club for me and it's a good contract," he said. He said salary terms hadn't been settled because they never got past the other stumbling block. There were reports that Clair, who coached Argos for five years from 1950 to 1954, was offered a four-year contract at $30,000 a year, plus $5,000 in performance bonuses.

The Toronto coaching job became vacant after completion of the EFC regular schedule when Nobby Winkowski was fired after three dismal losing seasons.

Several men have indicated they are interested. Among them are Bob Shaw, coach of Saskatchewan Roughriders, assistant coach Joe Restic of Hamilton Tiger-Cats, head coach Bud Grant of Winnipeg Blue Bombers and defensive coach Jim Champion of British Columbia Lions.

Another possible candidate is Frank (Pop) Ivy, former coach of Edmonton Eskimos.

Casey Tells Gridders
TORONTO (CP)—Dr. Tom Casey, a practising neurologist in Cleveland, Ohio, who was one of the most elusive half-backs in Canadian football in the 1950s, advised professional footballers Friday night to "stop acting stupid" simply because they feel the public expects it of them.

A six-year all-star with Winnipeg Blue Bombers who simultaneously put himself through a medical course at the University of Manitoba, Casey won a standing ovation when he rose as guest speaker at the 15th annual Grey Cup dinner.

He urged his successors in professional football to "get rid of the stereotype of stupidity" and make the most of the opportunities the game offers them in Canada.

"I cherish the education I received here," he said. "I cherish my friends and I'll stand up for Canada until the day I die."

The $10-a-plate dinner was set up in 1950 to aid footballers and their dependents in straitened circumstances.

Among those receiving help this year is Karl Hinzinger, a 28-year-old halfback with Saskatchewan and Ottawa Rough Riders during the 1950s who had both legs amputated above the knee after an automobile accident last June 20. He also suffered severe burns and doctors are fighting to save his right arm from amputation.

WRONG RIGHT

How to carry a tray skillfully, even if you're not a beer waiter.

Ever watch the way a good beer waiter handles a tray? That's Beermanship in its highest form.

Next time you have company, you can astound and delight them with your tray-technique:

1. Load glasses and bottles onto a flat tray.
2. Slide the tray onto your outstretched arm, as shown in the right-hand picture. (Ignore the other picture.)

3. Relax as you walk, and let the tray become "part of your arm."
4. Serve the beer calmly, from the middle of the tray, so it stays evenly balanced. It's easy, once you get the hang of it.

Note: This will work well with Molson Canadian—the light beer that's all beer.

Garden Notes

By M. V. CHESNUT, FRMR

I don't suppose there is a more satisfying sight in any garden than a well-planned and fairly spacious bed of perennial flowers, glowing with color, in high summer.

However, those of us who make a feature of perennials know, to our cost, the labor involved in staking and tying them.

This job not only takes up a lot of time which could be better spent loafing in a deck chair, but it is a tedious and boring business.

Moreover, the posture involved in tying plants to stakes is neither fully upright nor comfortably squatted, but sort of half bent over, tiring and conducive to a crick in the back.

As a lazy gardener with an incurable penchant for the hammock and sun cot, I have been keeping an eye open for good plants which don't need these attentions — plants with flowering stems strong enough to support themselves without orthopaedic assistance, or which can get along with only a bare minimum of help.

I am going a bit sour on delphiniums, for instance, even though I love their flowers, because of the gale losses when I neglect to stake them adequately.

Among the plants highly suitable for the lazy gardener's perennial bed, one of the best is Lythrum, as hardy as an oak and as flexible in the wind as a willow, thriving in almost any kind of soil and in any aspect, full sun or partial shade.

The plant is two to three feet tall, with dozens of thin, whippy stems covered with florets in pink, rose or purple, and it grows in calm serenity even under conditions of brutal neglect.

Some good named varieties are Morden Pink, Morden Gleam, Dropmore Purple and Robert, all of which bloom continuously from July to October. The plants are inexpensive, running from 50 cents to 75 cents each.

Most of the bellflowers are self-supporting, too. These are the perennial cousins of the familiar biennial Canterbury Bells and they get along without staking, providing the stems are thinned out in spring to avoid overcrowding.

These, too, will perform well in sun or light shade, and in any ordinary garden soil with a touch of lime added. I particularly admire the double blue peachleaf bellflower, which sells for 75 cents per plant.

For a touch of brilliant color, I can recommend Lychnis, variously nicknamed Rose Campion, Scarlet Lightning and Jerusalem Cross. Two good varieties are Sartori in rose pink and Haageana in deep scarlet, both holding themselves upright without need of stakes.

As commonly grown, the tall Michaelmas daisies are a bit floppy, requiring a string around their middle to pull the outer stems in. But if they are thinned drastically in the spring to about six stems per clump, they will be stout enough to support themselves.

This plant is made to order for the lazy gardener, for it will thrive under the most appalling conditions—I have even seen some pretty good specimens growing in an ash heap!

Don't be content to grow only the old-fashioned and rather weedy white ones when there are so many fine named varieties in brilliant colors and varying heights.

JOHN CROSBY Visits Sotheby's

Gauguin Under Hammer

LONDON—Peter Cecil Wilson, a six-foot, four-inch, mixture of charm, urbanity, and arrogance that Elton breeds into its old school tie, is chairman of Sotheby's, the most famous auction house in the world, and he was talking about Gauguin's Tahitian Woman and Son which he was auctioning off this afternoon.

"It's certainly the most European of his Tahitian paintings," said Wilson. "Also, one of the last seven paintings he sent to Paris before he died."

Since Gauguins are almost all world-famous through reproductions, it seemed odd I had never seen this one.

"Nobody had seen it," said Wilson. "It vanished before it had a chance to become known. It was exhibited in Paris in 1922. The Scots lady—she'll let us reveal her sex but not her name—bought it in 1923 for £1,200 ($3,360). These things happen. Paintings just vanish for 40 years until someone calls you."

(The Scots lady's name was unearthed by reporters. She's Mrs. Austin Mardon, American-born widow, who lives in Ardross Castle, Ross-shire with her nine children.)

"What do you think the painting will sell for?" I asked. Wilson shrugged: £80,000. I should say. Perhaps more. We hope the Scots widow is agreeably surprised.

"How many collectors can afford £80,000?"

Wilson smiled. "One or two Greeks. One or two English. Six or eight Americans. A few French and Germans. The last important Gauguin sold here was bought by a Frenchman and it went back to Paris."

At 2.30 p.m. I was in the main hall at Sotheby's under the five crystal chandeliers (all for sale at later auctions) when Peter Cecil Wilson, all six feet, four inches, of him, stood up behind the highly polished, gracefully curved rostrum and banged the ivory hammer discreetly for attention.

The bidding started. I watched a young, dark-eyed, good-looking, exquisitely turned-out chap, seated alone, run the bidding up and win a Pieter Mondriaan (7 1/2 by 9 1/2 inches) for £2,100 ($5,880)—for God's sake—five times what it's worth!

A Degas pastel, a dancer at the bar of which there are too many, went for £20,000 (good heavens, $56,000. Too much! Too much!).

The action on Tahiti at Garcon (supposedly Gauguin's mistress and his son) started at £10,000 and leapt quickly to £50,000 with four bidders—Hammer Gallery from New York, Marlborough Art (which are a sort of huge Cartier's of art you find in Rome, Paris,

New York, everywhere) and a couple of others—I couldn't identify.

The painting hung for a moment at £50,000—a lot of money—then leaped to £88,000, only Marlborough and Hammer in it now. "Sold for £88,000," said Wilson suavely. Then he detected a last flutter of interest, squeezed another £2,000 out of this despairing quiver, and knocked the painting down for £90,000, which is $236,000.

The Scots widow ought to be agreeably surprised. It should put the nine kids through school.

The Hammer Galleries got the vanished Gauguin. Armand Hammer said he bought it for himself. But then they always say that. Probably some museum with more money than paintings has got this dark, ugly, uncharacteristic, but important Gauguin.

Nobody paid any attention or even knew it was in that Scottish castle because nobody looks at £1,200 paintings. But now that it has been auctioned with an auction price of $236,000 everyone will give it the most profound and flattering attention.

The Little World of SHEILAH GRAHAM

Comic Togetherness

HOLLYWOOD (NANA)—Zero Mostel will star in the movie version of Something Funny Happened On The Way To The Forum, in the Mel Frank production, but his price will be double what it was before his Fiddler on the Roof, a stupendous hit. And it sounds like an expensive production. Producer-director Frank is talking about a bagful of other comics for the pictures—Milton Berle, Phil Silvers, Danny Thomas, Andy Griffith, etc. I can just see them cavorting in their togas—a mad, mad, mad, mad world in the forum.

Watching the debs parading at the Deb Star Ball, I wondered which of the chosen 10 would make it in terms of film success. I would bet on two, beauty winner Mary Ann Mobley, and sultry, sexy Rachel Welch. A surprisingly large number of the debs have done very well since the make-up artists and hair stylists of Hollywood initiated the annual affair in 1953.

Kim Novak was in the first batch of debs and she is now honorary chairman of the event. Kim had hoped to fly to Hollywood to attend the show, but her Moll Flanders picture kept her in London. Nonnie Towers, singer and actress, stands out in the 1954 lineup. Anita Ekberg was the deb stand-out in '55. And look how far out she went! Dolores Hari is now in a convent, but she was a white-clad deb of 1957. Dolores had a thriving movie career going for her when she decided to give her life to the church.

Nineteen fifty-eight was a bumper year for the debs. Three of them made the grade. Kathy Nolan, a star of two TV series, Jill St. John, and Tuesday Weld, both of whom are now stars with people like Bob Hope and Frank Sinatra. Kathy has married and divorced, so has Jill. But the make-up and hair stylist people could not have foreseen that. And in any case, one thing has nothing to do with the other.

The Deb Star Ball of 1959 produced Yvette Mimieux. Also Diane McBain, Leslie Parrish and Shirley Knight. Paula Prentiss was on the ramp in 1960. So was Sharon Hugueny who married and divorced a millionaire soon after. And in 1961 we find that old mouseketeer and new bride of zillionaire Lance Reventlow, Cheryl Holdridge. I'm beginning to think that the rich young men of Hollywood attend these balls to pick out a bride or a future lady friend.

The name that stands out sharp and tragically in the 1962 best of the debs, is Karyn Kupcinet, the sweet, pretty daughter of Chicago columnist Kip. The mystery of her death has never been cleared up by the police. Poor Karyn. She wanted so very much to be a movie star, and the world must have looked inviting and exciting, that evening when she heard her name called as a deb star of 1962. Within a year she was to be murdered.

It is too early to tell which of last year's debs will go on to fame and fortune. But there are some interesting names in the line-up. Claudia Martin, daughter of star Dean Martin; Meredith Macrae, who calls Gordon and Sheila Macrae, mother and father. And the attractive Chris Noel.

JUDGE PARKER

Passengers Fled Halloween Crash

Judgment was reserved in three completed impairment trials in city magistrate's court Friday.

Magistrate J. A. Byers set December dates for judgments in the cases of Barry Foster, 17, of 378 Dunsmuir; James McTavish, HMCS Ste. Therese and Rodo Unger, Work Point Barracks.

Foster had been charged with impaired driving after a car he was driving struck an abutment in the 700 block Yates Street a few minutes after midnight on Halloween.

Foster earlier had testified that he had only had a swallow of rum and coke, and a taste of creme-de-menthe during the evening.

He lost control of the car, he said, when his shoulder was bumped by one of two front-seat passengers in the act of turning to speak to one of the three youths in the back seat.

It happened in a split second when the car was only a few feet from the turn that skirts the concrete island, he said.

One of the youthful passengers in the car, all of whom fled from the scene after the crash, said he caused the accident.

The boy told the court he had been listening to the radio when an unnamed song was played.

"I turned around and said, 'That's mine,' and hit Barry's arm with my arm. Then my head hit the dash."

The witness, a second boy and Foster all insisted under cross-examination by Prosecutor Peter Birkett there was no drinking done by any of them except as stated by Foster.

None was able to state clearly why they all ran from the accident scene. "I was dazed, I guess. It was just force of habit," one said.

"I don't know. I was last out of the car and everybody else ran," said the other.

Defence counsel Ian Stewart said in summation police evidence expressing the opinion of Foster's impairment must be considered only as opinion.

Referring to a sobriety test given to the youth by Dr. H. L. McNiven at the city police station, Mr. Stewart said: "Dr. McNiven made an astounding—as usual—estimate of impairment."

He was referring to testimony by the doctor who estimated the impairment level of the youth by sobriety tests other than the breathalyzer to be .15 per cent.

Said Magistrate Byers: "Oh, that is just guess work. I would not pay any attention to that."

Defence counsel also said police witnesses had seen the youth driving earlier and had no cause to believe him impaired; no evidence of liquor was found in the car; no evidence introduced by the crown to indicate

FUNERAL CUSTOM
It is not unusual in Cambodia for a gay and festive funeral service lasting four days, to take place two years after a person's death, when the body is exhumed.

the youths took any liquor with them when they fled.

Prosecutor Birkett argued that the opinion of an experienced policeman as to the condition of a person is admissible and should carry weight. The case was set over to Dec. 12 for judgment.

Also set over to Dec. 12 for judgment was the case of Rodo Unger, charged Nov. 1 with being in care and control of a motor vehicle while impaired.

One police witness said he had first seen the accused sitting in the open passenger door of a parked car.

Another said he saw Unger leave the car by the driver's door, walk around the front to the passenger side and sit down on the seat with the door open.

Defence counsel Jack Gatehouse pointed out that a witness had earlier stated he left the keys in the car with the intent of coming back to drive Unger home.

Unger was too drunk to form the intent to drive, said Mr. Gatehouse.

Unger had been seen on the driver's side of the car, admitted being there then changed his mind, said prosecutor Birkett.

Evidence showed Unger had told others he was going home and "was all right."

In any event, it did not matter who put the keys in the ignition. They were there and helped constitute care and control under the law, contended Mr. Birkett.

In the third case, James K. McTavish had said he drank an estimated six ounces of whisky in order to get rid of it before police came to an accident scene.

The accused said he panicked and downed the whisky he had "foolishly" taken from the trunk earlier and placed in his coat pocket.

Police were not convinced they should lay a charge of impaired driving against McTavish until he agreed to take a breathalyzer test, the court was told. He had a .21 per cent blood alcohol reading.

McTavish had earlier passed the usual physical co-ordination tests which police ask impaired driving suspects to perform. He

Natural Gas by Dec. 15

By HARRY YOUNG
Colonist Business Editor

Westcoast Transmission Company's northern natural gas pipeline extension into the Fort Nelson area is to be ready to go into operation by Dec. 15.

The line, which cost $57,000 to build, connects with Westcoast's main line to the south at Chetwynd. Westcoast reports that the new treating plant at Fort Nelson has been completed, and compressor stations along the 220-mile main line are being tested.

Laid mainly during the summer months, the line will provide the first outlet for the vast natural gas fields which have been discovered in the past two years in the northeastern corner of British Columbia.

Once the Fort Nelson extension is in operation Westcoast will have a large available surplus of gas looking for a market.

Fallout in 1963 Worst on Record

UNITED NATIONS (CP) — Radioactive fallout in 1963 from nuclear explosions exceeded that of any previous year, the United Nations scientific committee on atomic radiation said Friday.

The committee's 1964 report said long-lived fallout in 1962 was three times that of 1960-61, and that of 1963 was higher still. With the ending of atmospheric and underwater testing in December 1963, descending fallout for 1964 was expected to drop to two-thirds of that in 1963, the report said.

Short-lived fission products decayed to negligible levels during 1963 so no further dose would come from the stratosphere after 1964.

Wagon Train Tour Proposed for B.C.

A replica of the wagon train of pioneer days may tour B.C. in 1967.

Deputy provincial secretary L. J. Wallace, general chairman of the provincial centennial committee, said Friday this is one of many suggestions that are being seriously considered by planners.

Other ideas are for a walking marathon, a bicycle race, and pony express race.

Mr. Wallace cited the vintage car race held during the 1968 B.C. centennial as the general type of event which the committee is seeking.

The committee wants to encourage participation in centennial events by as many communities as possible, he said.

To kick off Canada's birthday party there will be ceremonies throughout the province in 1966, for the 100th anniversary of the union of the Crown colonies of Vancouver Island and Mainland B.C.

Playhouse Issue

Council Decides Not to Interfere

There will be no aldermanic interference with the decision made by McPherson director Robert Ellison in the Smile Show case, according to city hall sources.

An appraisal of the situation was made Friday afternoon by members of the Recreation and Community Service Advisory Committee, and a statement was made following the meeting.

Earlier in the day Ald. A. W. Toome, chairman of the committee, said there should be no political interference with the Ellison decision.

SIX-WEEK BOOKING

Supporters of Mr. Gosley and the Smile Show began to protest as soon as it was learned that the playhouse management had refused the show a six-week booking which would have included the three weeks in August, when the tourist season is at its height.

This statement made following Friday's committee meeting: "In September Mr. Gosley formally applied to book the McPherson Community Playhouse for the full summer season of July and August, 1965.

CIVIC POLICY

"He was advised that in accordance with civic policy bookings of other types of entertainment were being accepted and the theatre would not be available between Aug. 8 and Sept. 6, 1965. He was asked to confirm the dates that he required during July and to Aug. 7, 1965."

"In spite of a follow-up request for confirmation from the theatre manager, Mr. Gosley did not formally apply to book the playhouse for the period from June 1 to Aug. 7, 1965, until Nov. 12, 1964, about eight weeks after he was advised of the open dates."

"Since there is now a conflict in bookings, some selection will have to be made in the very near future."

"It should be noted that a number of other theatres in the city are available to Mr. Gosley although it must be admitted that the rental fees will, of course, be higher since these are commercial houses."

Community Effort Needed by City

By IAN STREET
Colonist Legislative Reporter

Greater Victoria should launch new community programs designed to combat juvenile delinquency instead of seeking more aid from the provincial government, Attorney-General Robert Bonner said Friday.

"The time for long-haired analysis is past," Mr. Bonner said. "The time for a little basic organizing is very much at hand."

The attorney-general said it has been proved elsewhere that the extent to which a community organizes programs directed towards youth bears direct relationship to curbs on juvenile delinquency.

FACILITIES NEEDED

"This is not really a very well-equipped community for young people," said Mr. Bonner. "We need three or four swimming pools and could use another rink or two as well."

As long as this kind of "road-block" exists within the community, he said, there was no point in looking to the provincial government for increased assistance in solving the juvenile delinquency problem.

Mr. Bonner said any parent knows from his own experience that it takes hard work to foster development of youngsters along the right lines.

COURT FACILITIES

He was commenting on the report of the Community Welfare Council committee on juvenile delinquency which criticized government and municipal facilities for "woefully inadequate" family and juvenile court facilities in Greater Victoria.

Since family and juvenile courts throughout B.C. are a local responsibility any criticism of these facilities locally must be laid at the door of the municipalities, he said.

Local authorities, however, appear to be aware of the problem and "great improvement" of court accommodation is underway.

Music Program Set Today

Victoria Branch, Registered Music Teachers, will close National Music Week with a program of original compositions by Victoria musicians at 8 p.m. today at 1462 Fort Street.

The attorney-general said two years ago his department used considerable pressure to awaken local attitudes to the needs of the family and juvenile court.

"There is a question of how far we as a government can go without taking it entirely out of local hands," Mr. Bonner said.

He said the committee's recommendation that the government study the need for "disposition boards" attached to the court appears to have been made in ignorance of one of the key sections of the Family Court Act which calls for setting up of a local family and juvenile court committee.

'QUESTIONABLE'

Whether this committee could advise the judge on disposition of cases before the court, however, was "very questionable."

Mr. Bonner said he disagreed with another recommendation that the government establish more smaller institutions to care for juvenile offenders.

"It is quite apparent that institutions, except in rare cases, do not provide the answer to juvenile delinquency," he said.

Appeal Hits Target With 11th-Hour Gift

Hit-Run Car Injures Girls

Many Seek Police Jobs

Applicants are flocking into Esquimalt police station to obtain applications for the six policemen's jobs opened by council last week. By Friday a total of 58 men had been given forms to fill out in preliminary stages of employment-seeking, said police.

A 17-year-old juvenile gave himself up to police about half an hour after a hit-and-run car knocked down two teen-age girls on Blanshard at Queens Friday night.

The girls were not seriously injured.

Police said the girls were walking on the sidewalk at the time of the accident, and a car mounted the curb and struck them while attempting to pass another vehicle.

Police combed the downtown area for the car for about half an hour before they were called to Uncle Jake's Discotheque in downtown Victoria, where a youth had given himself up to manager Tony Elise. A car was located later.

The injured girls were identified as Sharon Michaels, 14, of 2632 Blanshard, who suffered a broken right leg, and Christine Mitchell, 15, of the same address, who suffered shock. Both girls were admitted to Royal Jubilee Hospital.

Craft Sales Likely

Victoria craftsmen will have a chance to exhibit and sell their wares in Bastion Square if Mrs. Jeanne Sheppard, 2991 Fernside has her way.

"The city has promised us a place in the Heaney Building," Mrs. Sheppard said Friday.

"If enough craftsmen are interested, we will form an association and during the summer they will be able to give exhibitions of their art in the Square. During the winter we will hold indoor exhibitions," she said.

Potters, wood carvers, weavers, sculptors, copper workers, painters and artists interested in the project should put their names, addresses and type of work on a slip of paper and deposit it in a box at the Art Gallery before Dec. 2, said Mrs. Sheppard.

"We want people with imagination to help us create an atmosphere in the Square that will be remembered by all who visit our city," she said.

The Greater Victoria United Appeal campaign hit the goal of $410,000 Friday.

When campaign offices closed at 5 p.m. Thursday, the gap was $1,940.

On Friday morning Donald J. Lawson, campaign chairman, received a phone call from a man pledging $1,900 to close the gap. The only thing the caller requested was that he be kept anonymous.

The regular monthly meeting of the board of directors of the Community Chest was to be held a few hours after the call was received.

Mr. Lawson, in conjunction with vice-chairman Graham McCall, prepared a statement for the meeting. When the directors were assembled Mr. Lawson announced:

"Speaking for the campaign committee we are delighted to be able to report that an anonymous donor has come forward today with a $1,900 gift to close the gap which existed between donations and pledges to date and the campaign goal."

DEVOTED EFFORTS

"With gratitude for the generosity of the citizens of Greater Victoria and for the devoted efforts of so many who volunteered their services to the campaign, the committee announces that this year's United Appeal has now slightly exceeded its $410,000 goal," he said.

"It will be some days before a final accurate figure can be given of the total amount raised in donations and pledges, but the people of this community have proved their belief in the value of the Community Chest and their determination that the necessary money will be provided to ensure that the 24 member agencies will continue to provide their essential services."

LAST MEET IN 1961

The United Appeal goal was last met in 1961 under chairmanship of Justin Harbord who also served as president of the Community Chest board of directors for the financial year.

Prior to 1961, the last over-the-top campaign was 1956.

Last year's campaign was $18,000 short of the $400,000 goal.

Council Elections

36 Candidates Fight For 19 Vacancies

By GARY OAKES

When polls open for the six area elections Dec. 12, at least 36 candidates will be fighting for 19 council seats.

More than 50,000 voters in Greater Victoria and the Saanich Peninsula will fill those seats from a list of 17 incumbents and at least 19 challengers.

Voters will choose four councillors in Victoria, three in Saanich, Oak Bay and Esquimalt, two village commissioners in Sidney and a reeve and three councillors in Central Saanich.

NOT RUNNING

Only one incumbent, Sidney Commissioner J. E. Bosher, is not running. There is one empty seat on Victoria council caused by the death of Ald. Arthur Dowell.

Nominations close at noon Monday.

Meanwhile, unless there are last-minute entries, Central Saanich Reeve R. Gordon Lee will be re-elected by acclamation as will Sidney Commissioner L. R. Christian. Another Sidney candidate, motel operator M. R. Eaton, is so far unchallenged for Mr. Bosher's seat.

Veterans' Hospital

Orderlies Issue Strike Threat

Nursing orderlies at Veterans' Hospital here will meet orderlies from Vancouver's Shaughnessy Hospital next week to decide what action to take to have their wage scale raised.

"We are prepared to strike if necessary," said a spokesman for the orderlies here.

They also were investigating a report that orderlies at Shaughnessy had staged a 20-minute work stoppage Wednesday night.

MEETING HELD

The assistant superintendent of Shaughnessy told the Colonist the night-shift orderlies at the hospital "had some sort of meeting the other night."

He said it was news to him if they had staged work for 20 minutes.

A spokesman for the Civil Service Association of Canada in Vancouver said Friday all the orderlies who attended the meeting at Shaughnessy were off shift at the time.

He said so far as he knew there was no work stoppage, but the orderlies had protested their wage scale to the national office with a view to having negotiations re-opened.

WERE LEFT OUT

The orderlies are protesting being left out of the latest series of pay raises for federal government workers.

They got their last raise in January, 1963.

An emergency meeting of orderlies was held Thursday to prepare a presentation to a meeting Tuesday night of the National Association of Veterans Affairs Employees.

The meeting with Shaughnessy orderlies is to take place after that.

HIGHER WAGE

"We will know exactly what to do then and we are prepared to strike to improve our situation," said the spokesman.

Starting wage for an orderly at Veterans' Hospital here is $2.40 a month rising to $3.04 after two years.

At Royal Jubilee Hospital and St. Joseph's Hospital the starting wages are more than $50 per month higher.

SOME INQUIRIES

Jubilee medical supervisor Dr. Murray Anderson said Friday the hospital had some inquiries from Veterans' orderlies who were looking for jobs.

"There was no great rush and we haven't taken on any former DVA employees recently," said Dr. Anderson.

He said the salaries of orderlies in acute hospitals were usually higher than in DVA hospitals.

Students Share Books

A shortage of science and social studies books in Victoria elementary schools has made it necessary for as many as three students to share one book.

This fact came to light at a meeting of the Greater Victoria Parent-Teacher Council when Doncaster P.T.A. brought in a resolution calling for book rentals by the department of education as one solution of the problem.

The shortage occurs in Grades 4, 5 and 6 with science and social studies books and an atlas which is used in social studies.

Council gave its approval to the resolution which will now be put forward at the B.C. Parent-Teacher Education convention to be held here in March.

Elegant Gowns

Glamour Spotlights Deb Ball

All the sparkle and excitement of a debutante presentation was played over again at the Empress Hotel last evening at the United Services Institution annual ball.

Gowned in traditional white, 12 debutantes walked up the red carpet to make their bow to His Honor the Lieutenant-Governor.

Very much missed at last night's gala affair was Mrs. Pearkes, wife of His Honor, whose gracious manner has often put a nervous debutante at ease in a moment. Mrs. Pearkes had been forced to cancel engagements this week because of a cold.

Rear-Admiral E. W. Finch-Noyes, president of USI, and Mrs. Finch-Noyes were in the receiving line, the latter wearing a lovely gown of apricot colored peau de soie. The dress was styled on Empire lines, as popular this season, with beaded lace yoke and down the front panel.

After the presentations, escorts claimed their debutantes and they took to the floor to dance the debutante waltz.

It may have been cold outside but the weather was forgotten as the weeks of preparation became a reality for the young girls who held the spotlight all evening.

Lace Appliques

Miss Patricia Barker, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gordon A. Barker, was first to be presented. She chose a lovely gown of sheer nylon over heavy tulle and net styled with bouffant skirt and round neckline which dipped into a deep V in back. Lace appliques enhanced the fitted waistline and bodice front. She wore a single strand of pearls and matching earrings and tiny seed pearls were nestled in her dark hair. Mr. John Dumont was her escort for the ball.

Dinner Party

Dark-haired Janice Dixon was in a white satin gown with tiny shoulder straps and sparkling, light beading on the front of the bodice. A self bow at the back marked two floating back panels. Her parents, Cmdr. and Mrs. Garfield Dixon, entertained at a dinner party at the Empress before the ball when guests were Lt.-Col. and Mrs. R. D. Travis, Major and Mrs. Harry Coull, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Rowbotham, Mr. and Mrs. Donald Cameron, Janice's escort, Officer Cadet Michael Hayes, and brother, Alan Dixon.

Peau de Soie

Lovely Miss Jennifer Dutton chose a softly pleated gown of white peau de soie with fitted, sleeveless bodice and high round neckline dipping into a V in back. Her jewelry was a double strand of pearls. Miss Dutton is the daughter of Capt. and Mrs. F. W. Dutton and her escort for the ball was Officer Cadet Laurie Winters.

Snowy White

Snowy white peau de soie gown with bouffant overskirt was chosen by Miss Judith Anne Fielder for the all important night. The round neckline was embroidered with tiny seed pearls and a self bow at the waistline added back interest. She wore a pearl tiara and matching earrings. Miss Fielder is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Fielder and her escort for the evening was Officer Cadet Michael McLennan.

Miss Jane Hayes looked stately in a gown of heavy white cotton lace fashioned on classic lines with small tulle band at the waistline ending in a small front bow. A single strand of pearls was her only jewelry.

Daughter of Capt. W. P. Hayes, commandant of Royal Roads, and Mrs. Hayes, Jane with her parents and escort, Officer Cadet Alastair Currie, attended a dinner party at Admiral's House before the ball.

French Brocade

Miss Karen Hewitt was in an exquisite white French brocade gown styled with fitted bodice and belled skirt. She wore a single strand of pearls and a rhinestone tiara. Miss Hewitt is the daughter of Mr. J. W. Hewitt of Montreal and the granddaughter of Mrs. J. W. Lennox of Victoria. Officer Cadet Michael Johnson was her escort for the ball.

Feather Design

Rich brocade gown in feather design and fashioned with a belled skirt and scooped neckline was chosen by Miss Gail Lineham for her formal bow to society. Her only jewelry was a rhinestone tiara. By PHYLLIS HEATHCOTE
PARIS—The mid-season coat is a must. Something you can snug into when the first cold snap hits the air. Something that is not too heavy and not too light. . . . Something that will come out smiling on those first spring days. From Paris here are three typical half-season coats from the Great Collections—all three pure woolen.
Left: Look at the Balmain outfit. Supremely elegant suit in fine white worsted basketweave, buttoning up snugly to the shaped standing collar and hitched casually over one shoulder, a roomy all-purpose coat in Bernat Klein's fabulous "bubble tweed" in a brilliant harmony of blues and greens. On the head is one of the hood-cum-scarf affairs in jersey that Balmain launched this season. Centre: The trimly fitted coat with the black leather string belt is a Saint-Laurent model designed in a sulphur yellow tweed from Yorkshire by Garigue. For the record, Garigue calls this pattern, "I love you." Right: The third illustration shows a 12 model by Guy Laroche again in a Garigue woolen—this time a magnificent double-face fleece in a pretty, light beige color. Fashionable standing collar worn rather far away from the throat and equally fashion-wise double-breasted fronts. It goes over a skimmer-sheath wool crepe dress trimmed with two large patch pockets placed low in front.

Dear Ann Landers: Our daughter is 12 years old. I am concerned about her continuing devotion to Marilyn Monroe. My husband says I'm making too much of it but I feel the child's preoccupation with a movie star who committed suicide is unhealthy.

Aug. 5 was the second anniversary of Marilyn Monroe's death. Our daughter remembered the date and searched several newspapers for clippings and put them in her Marilyn scrap book. We live near the star's final resting place and our daughter wants to go there every day.

I've decided not to say or do anything until I get some horse sense advice from you.—WAITING TO HEAR

Dear Waiting: Try to shift your daughter's interest. If she has modest talents—voice, dancing, painting, or piano, give her lessons. Tell her she may now visit the crypt again until next Aug. 5.

After six months, if her morbid preoccupation with Miss Monroe persists, take her to a psychiatrist.

Dear Ann Landers: My mother and father were happily married for 32 years. Mother passed away last June. Dad took it awfully hard—for about three weeks.

Now he is so busy making dates with all the widows in the neighborhood we don't know where he is half the time.

Dad used to complain that his teeth didn't fit, and that his luncheon was bothering him but since he has become a ladies' man he says he feels better than he has in years. To look at him you'd never guess he is 75 years old.

All this may sound fine, but I'm worried that the lively pace may shorten his life. He could drop dead doing the hully gully any minute. Also, is it possible that he is in his second childhood? How do we get him to slow down without hurting his feelings?—C. C.

Dear C. C.: Leave him alone. His second childhood may be a lot more fun than his first. Better that Gramps should be

Pope to Attend Mass At Open-Air Altar

BOMBAY, India (UPI)—Pope Paul, during his historic visit to India next month, will attend mass at an ultra-modern outdoor altar designed by a Hindu.

The altar, built specially for the 38th International Eucharistic Congress which opens Saturday, is located at the Oval—a car park in central Bombay where major congress celebrations will be held.

"I am not a Catholic but I hope to be able to meet the pope anyway," said 32-year-old Suraj P. Subhervel, the Calcutta architect who won a national competition with his design for the altar.

RELIGIOUS STRUCTURE

"Actually I don't think that whether I am Catholic has anything to do with the design. There is no reason a religious structure should be different from any other structure," he said.

"There has been a bit of opposition to the altar, but generally the congress officials have congratulated me on the work."

The altar and the structure holding it are based on squares and triangles of wood. The teak and mahogany altar is on the fourth level.

CONGRESS SYMBOL

Covering the altar is a futuristic styled canopy which has become the symbol of the congress. It is made of four thin triangular poles which join at the top to cover the altar. The top of the canopy is 67 feet above the ground, with a cross on top rising another 23 feet.

The idea behind the structure is to put the pope and others participating in the eucharistic congress events in view of the 200,000 spectators expected to crowd the Oval for each ceremony.

Beneath the structure, which weighs 150 tons, is a chapel and a sacristy. There are steps leading from the inside structure to the altar.

THREE VISITS

The Oval itself is about 350 yards long. It is bordered by the Bombay University high court on one side and by a modern apartment building on the other. Pope Paul will visit it three times, but only twice for any length of time.

Coming in from his arrival at Santa Cruz airport on Dec. 2 he will stop briefly to bless newly-consecrated priests.

His visits to lengthy ceremonies will be late in the afternoon of Dec. 3 and 4.

On Dec. 3 he will arrive at the south end of the Oval by car and walk through the big main gate. Then he will board a special jeep with a raised roof and will be escorted to the far end of the Oval and then back to the central altar. There he will consecrate five bishops from five different continents.

The following day the pontiff will preside over a mass and blessing of the sick in the Syro-Malankarese rite at the Oval.

HUGE CHOIR

On either side of the altar structure are two specially-built platforms. One will hold 1,500 members of the 5,000-voice choir which will participate in the ceremonies, and includes press areas. The other is for cardinals, bishops and other church dignitaries attending the congress.

The rest of the Oval is filled with chairs—80,000 of them. Police have ordered the chairs fenced off in blocks so the crowds can be more easily controlled.

Psychiatrists Say:

Beating Your Wife May Aid Marriage

ATLANTA, Ga. (UPI)—It is all right to beat your wife—in some cases. It may even help save your marriage.

These conclusions were drawn by three psychiatrists who have spent five years interviewing 37 "wife-beater's wives" in a study of what motivates a man to beat his wife, and when and why she gets fed up enough to call police.

The study was made by Dr. John Snell of Emory University in Atlanta and Dr. Richard Rosenwald and Dr. Ames Robey, both of Framingham, Mass.

Their study showed that wife-beating, among certain types of marital partners, may actually hold a marriage together. The aggressive act satisfied deep, unconscious needs of both man and wife, the doctors said.

The husband who wields the belt or stick usually is a good provider, faithful to his wife and not desirous of a divorce, the doctors said in a paper published in the archives of general psychiatry.

Wife-beating, the doctors said, "may serve to fill a wife's needs even though she protests it."

The study showed that many wives submit to beatings for years without calling police until an adolescent son urges her to call for help.

The husbands and wives studied showed they fitted into a "family structure... characterized by the husband's passivity, indecisiveness and sexual inadequacy."

The wives were "aggressive in a subtle, masochistic and rigid."

A domineering wife, the doctors believe, has a sense of guilt that is relieved by occasional beatings.

Whole World Honoring Sir Winston

By JOSEPH MACSWEN

LONDON (CP) — Sir Winston Churchill is "cheerful and happy" approaching his 90th birthday, a secretary said Friday night.

Greetings and gifts from "all parts of the world—a terrific lot from Canada and the United States," were arriving at the London home of the man who called Britain to its "finest hour."

Churchill will be 90 Monday but the celebration begins Sunday — if not before—with television and other tributes. Sir Winston plans to appear at the balcony window of his Knightsbridge house Sunday to be photographed and return the salutes of admirers.

QUEEN'S GREETINGS

The Queen will extend greetings to the beloved "Winston" who was prime minister when she was crowned in June, 1953.

A recording company is scheduled to release Monday in Britain, Canada and 25 other countries—including West Germany—a set of records bearing major speeches by Churchill.

A spokesman said 200 sets of the records, which play for up to 10 hours and cost $25, have been ordered by West German buyers.

WORLDWIDE

Present and greetings from around the world have poured into the Churchill home.

"Never have there been so many so early," a member of the household said, adding: "I cannot see how we will ever be able to acknowledge them all."

For Sir Winston, who moves about with difficulty using a cane, the birthday itself will be a quiet day. He and his wife, Clementine, wed for 56 years, will preside over a family dinner party.

Postmaster — General Anthony Wedgwood Benn has announced that Sir Winston may become the first living person outside royalty to appear on a British postage stamp. But it will not be ready for the birthday.

North Pole Traced

Canadian scientists have once again caught up with the wandering north magnetic pole. Pole has moved about 20 miles north and about four miles east of 1962 fixed position. Position of pole was first recorded in 1831 off Boothia Peninsula. Pole's new position will be used in magnetic charts of Canada for accurate navigation. Scientists say the pole wanders because of variation in magnetic field within earth's core.—(CP)

Teacher Asks Public Hearing In Alberta Suspension Case

EDMONTON (CP)—A public hearing was suggested Friday by Raymond Hertzog as the "only fair" method of investigating circumstances surrounding his suspension as a teacher in a rural Strathcona County high school.

The suspension was ordered by county officials after parents accused Mr. Hertzog of ridiculing Christianity and dragging trash literature into the classroom.

Mr. Hertzog, 26, a former Vancouver resident, said in an interview he understood the education department wanted a closed inquiry into the suspension.

He said he wanted an open hearing because "I know a lot of people who felt there was nothing wrong in what I did."

"A public hearing would act as an indicator of the support I have from parents and other persons interested in education."

He was to meet with Alberta Teachers' Association officials Friday to "arrange for my defence," and said he expected to be represented by counsel at any inquiry.

The official charge against

Mr. Hertzog read in part: "His presence in school as a teacher and guidance counsellor is detrimental to the moral well-being of the pupils."

H. E. Panabaker, former assistant superintendent of Calgary Public School Board, has been appointed to conduct the hearing, expected to open next week in Edmonton.

Mr. Panabaker said it would be a closed inquiry "because of the nature of the charges."

MPs Attack

Ex-Warden Called 'Disgrace'

OTTAWA (CP) — An angry MP Friday demanded the dismissal of the $11,000-a-year information officer in the federal penitentiaries service, accusing him of total responsibility for maladministration at St. Vincent de Paul penitentiary prior to the serious riot there in June of 1962.

Arnold Peters (NDP — Timiskaming) said the man—he did not identify him by name—served as warden of the prison prior to the riot, kept two homosexual prisoners in the administration building and was a disgrace to the penitentiary service.

FLOP AS A WARDEN
"Where is this warden today? He has been promoted," Mr. Peters said, speaking in the debate on justice department estimates. "He was a flop as a warden but now he is the information officer of the department."

"So far as I am concerned, before these estimates are passed that man's salary must be deducted because I have tried him and found him guilty of gross maladministration, and I am not in agreement with paying his salary."

MINISTER AGREES

The NDP member said he would move an amending motion to have that particular salary chopped from the justice estimates unless Justice Minister Favreau agreed to look into the matter.

Mr. Favreau said immediately he would undertake to "look at this situation" if Mr. Peters did not pursue the matter further with a motion.

Mr. Peters said the present warden at St. Vincent de Paul "has gone a long way towards correcting some of the abuses that took place in that prison."

The present warden is M. J. M. LeCorre.

In West Germany

Touring Indians Honor Canadian

A Canadian "defender" has been appointed in Delinghofen, Germany, in a surprise move made by North American Indians touring the West German province of Westphalia and taking part in the 54th annual fall festival at Soest.

The unexpected honor was received by Lt.-Col. G. G. Brown, commanding officer, 1st Battalion, Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry.

He was named We-Cha-Kno-Nicha (defender) by Chief Jim Archdale of Poplar, Mont. The commanding officer had invited the group to visit 140 Canadians of Indian descent serving with the infantry unit.

The investing ceremony included singing and dancing to tribal drum beats and prayers for the newly-appointed defender who knelt to receive the feathered headdress from Joe and Belia Roan of Hobbema, Alta.

The visiting group, mostly from Alberta, later watched unit weapon training and toured a school in Fort MacLeod, the unit's home in Germany, where about 400 Canadian youngsters were treated to a glimpse of the performers in full Indian regalia.

Hamilton Falls

Quebec Hopeful
Lesage Reply
To Smallwood

QUEBEC (CP)—The Quebec government is still hopeful power from Hamilton Falls in Labrador will be carried to customers in New England across Quebec province, Premier Lesage said Friday.

He made the announcement in reply to Premier Smallwood of Newfoundland, who said in Montreal Thursday night it was "too late" for Quebec to negotiate for Hamilton Falls power.

Mr. Smallwood said his government had decided to transmit the power through Newfoundland and the Maritime provinces by undersea cable and if this was not agreeable to the British Newfoundland Corporation (Brinco), developers of the project, then he might get someone else to do the job.

Although negotiations between Quebec and Newfoundland had been "interrupted" July 8, they had not been "broken off" and Quebec had "never closed the door" to further talks.

Quebec was negotiating to buy the power at the Quebec-Newfoundland border, then resell it to New England customers.

NOT AVAILABLE

"Regarding the carrying of power to New England by submarine cable," Mr. Lesage said, "let me point out Mr. (Robert) Winters (Brinco chairman) emphasized Thursday that Mr. Smallwood had informed him that the report on the feasibility of this scheme would not be available in final form for another two weeks."

The Quebec premier had commented earlier that Mr. Smallwood could not act without Brinco "because Hamilton Falls do not belong just to him."

He apparently was referring to the Quebec government's 20-per-cent share in Hamilton Falls which it acquired as an asset

From Roof

Janitor Routs Burglars

Noisy burglars were chased from the roof of a downtown chinaware store Thursday night by a daring janitor who observed them from the next building.

The janitor, Hank Zethof, 39, of 1270 Vista Heights, told police he was working in the Metropolitan Building when he heard a noise from the roof of Montague Bridgman Ltd., 811 Government.

Two men fled and the janitor scuffled briefly with one of them on the street.

RAN INTO HOTEL

The man broke away and disappeared while Mr. Zethof pursued the other into the Humboldt entrance of the Empress Hotel.

The fleeing man dashed into a room, locked the door and escaped by slipping out a window. Later two steel punches were picked up in the hotel hallway and turned over to police.

Police arrested Robert G. Gibb, 24, of Victoria in a car in front of the chinaware store some time later. He was remanded in city magistrate's court Friday on a charge of possessing safebreaking tools.

FOUND IN CAR

Police said they found two more punches in Gibb's car. Magistrate J. A. Byers set bail for Gibb at $1,000 and remanded him without plea until Dec. 3.

Mr. Zethof, a former athlete who emigrated from Holland 12 years ago, was uninjured in the incident. A father of four, he works part-time as a janitor and is employed as an inside worker at a Victoria dairy.

Fined $25

They Lied About Losing Jobs

Two Victoria men were fined $25 each in city magistrate's court after pleading guilty to falsifying unemployment insurance applications.

Bertram E. Harrison, 55, of 333 Atkins and Charles Pronovost, 56, of 1351 Johnson had claimed they were laid off their jobs.

A spot check by UIC officials disclosed both men had quit their jobs and had not left because of a work shortage as they claimed.

Neither man had received any benefits under the fraudulent claims.

Snow Stalls Vancouver Motorists

VANCOUVER (UPI)—Dozens of traffic accidents occurred in the Greater Vancouver area Friday morning after a one-inch snowfall, the first of the season.

There were no serious injuries reported.

Taxi companies got a lot of business from people who didn't want to drive to work, and tow trucks were at their busiest in months, pulling cars from ditches.

Sanding crews were out early but by 9 a.m. there were still reports of slippery conditions on some hills and busy level stretches of road.

Court Frees 15 Pickets

VANCOUVER (CP)—A magistrate Friday acquitted 15 pickets on charges of unlawful assembly.

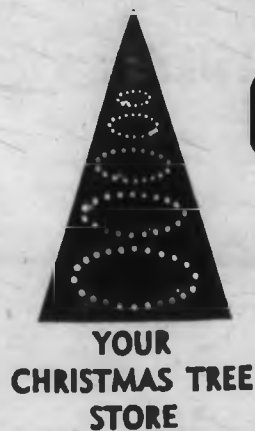

Magistrate Lorne Jackson ruled that picketing outside the D. S. Scott Transport Ltd. terminal by seven men and eight women did not cause any disturbance or fear to neighboring people.

The 15 were charged as they picketed during a strike which still continues over the firing of two men. Police arrested a group of men, women and children in front of the building Oct. 3.

Alberta Road Act 'The Toughest'

EDMONTON (CP) — Highway Minister Taylor said Friday Alberta's vehicles and highway traffic act is the toughest in Canada.

The act provides a mandatory six-month suspension of a licence for persons convicted of impaired driving. This isn't done in any other province, he said.

Mr. Taylor was replying to an Edmonton magistrate who said the penalties section of the act "was out of step with reality."

The highways minister said the legislature felt the licence suspension would be a greater deterrent than heavy fines.

"Fines just mean the rich can pay and the poor cannot," he added.

Chinese Relocation

Old People's Fate Duncan Problem

By KLAUS MUENTER

DUNCAN — The city has no intention of putting 60 elderly Chinese-Canadians out on the street and is working to help them relocate, Mayor Jack Dobson said Friday.

His statement referred to a principal unsettled problem in plans for the long-awaited Duncan courthouse and civic centre.

The mayor announced he and other city officials were told Thursday during a Victoria meeting with Public Works Minister Chant that construction of the more than $500,000 courthouse will start within two months.

CIVIC CENTRE

The provincial government will build a courthouse and an administration building on land near the present courthouse and in part of Duncan's Chinatown. The city plans to make these buildings part of an elaborate civic centre sometime in the future.

Crossin Elected

NANAIMO — E. C. Crossin was elected chairman of the Nanaimo district junior forest warden council at the recent annual meeting. Other officers are Mrs. M. Shimmeyer, secretary; Garth Godwin, vice-chairman; Gary Henderson, treasurer; W. T. Spowart, district supervisor and council members Gordon Holt, Hugh LeCren, William Marwick and John Miller.

Police Identify Pair Killed in Collision

CUMBERLAND — Two employees of Western Mines Ltd. in the Campbell River area who died in a car-truck crash on Thursday evening were identified Friday by the Cumberland RCMP detachment.

Police said the victims were Laurie George Peach, 23, of Windsor Forks, N.S., and Alan McKin, 21, of Ottawa.

They died after their car skidded on wet pavement and hit the truck about two miles south of Union Bay.

Truck driver William George Vass of Fanny Bay and passengers Al Sampson of Fanny Bay and his son Benny were not hurt.

He said the pensioners need a community type of life and asked: "Where are we going to settle them?"

Mayor Dobson said the city has "no intention of putting them out on the street . . . It is our great concern to help them to relocate."

Santa Claus Awes Young Fan

Bantamian gripped Nanaimo Friday as Santa arrived in a helicopter at arena parking lot at 4 p.m. to touch off city's Christmas lighting campaign. Among those greeting visitor were Mayor Maffeo and awed Benny Jean Lindsay, 2, who then repaired to Gyro skating party in arena at which Lissa gave out free ice cream. — (Agnes Fleet)

Loaded Firearms in Car Cost Two Hunters $75

ALBERNI — An Alberni district resident whose gun went off in a car in which his wife and another woman were passengers has been fined $50 in magistrate's court on a charge of carrying a loaded firearm in a vehicle.

Leroy Schran appeared on the charge following an incident at a game checkpoint at Great Central Lake.

According to information given in court, Schran's gun went off accidentally as game conservation officer Desmond Haddleton approached the car.

A hunting companion, Harold McDonald, was in the front seat while the wives of the two men occupied the back seat.

The bullet went through a rear window of the car.

McDonald, also charged with carrying a loaded firearm in the vehicle, was fined $25.

Annual Pioneer Tribute

Ceremony at rock, behind Bastion, marked arrival at 11 a.m. Nov. 25, 1854, of barque Princess Royal, which brought settlers here after storm-tossed, six-month trip from England. — (Agnes Fleet)

Nanaimo Magistrate Warns:

Drinking Drivers Will Pay More

NANAIMO—Magistrate Eric Winch gave notice in city magistrate's court Friday he is following instructions of superior courts to increase the penalties for impaired driving, and will continue to do so.

Mother Wants Blood

DUNCAN — A Crofton mother whose life was saved last spring by more than six transfusions of blood from the Red Cross, Friday urged all Cowichan Valley residents to attend a blood donor clinic, and she's going herself.

Mrs. Robert Fisher, whose children are Billy, 4, and Gordon, 2, said she received the blood after suffering an internal hemorrhage following an operation.

She said she would have died if it had not been for the blood and "the wonderful doctors and hospital employees."

GIVE OUR SHARE
"I know only too well how important the Red Cross blood clinic is," said Mrs. Fisher. "Every chance we get, my husband and I will give our share."

The one-day clinic will be held by the Cowichan Red Cross branch in St. John's hall from 1:30 to 4:30 and 6:30 to 9:30 p.m. Dec. 18. The quota will be 450 pints.

The magistrate, who has been presiding in the absence of recently-siling Magistrate Lionel Beaver-Potts, spoke after giving two larger-than-normal fines to two men who pleaded guilty to impaired driving.

Robert Rinta of Ladysmith was fined $250, or $100 more than the usual in magistrate's court here, and given a three-month driving licence suspension.

PARKED CAR

Police said Rinta drove a car on Commercial Street early Friday which drove a parked car into a light standard, causing estimated total damage of $1,000.

George Bell Morgan of Sixth Street in Nanaimo was fined $275 and given a 14-day licence suspension. Police said he was involved in a two-car collision at Fifth Street and Park Avenue after failing to stop at a stop sign.

"The number of impaired drivers appearing in this court has been steadily increasing," said Magistrate Winch. "There is not always an average of one a day but many times this is so and today we have two."

NO EXPLANATION

"Both entered guilty pleas, both were involved in accidents for which they gave no explanation and which must be attributed to a degree of impairment. Today the first snowfall of the year is around and some island roads are in extremely dangerous condition because of ice."

"I'm fully aware we are entering the holiday season where many people will be participating in parties," Magistrate Winch went on. "I hope they have a good time . . . it is not my desire to restrict this good time."

"But I hope people, if they are going to drink, drink in moderation or make some arrangements to have one sober person do the driving."

HURT FAMILY

"I'm always concerned," he said, "that heavy fines are not only hurting the individual convicted of impaired driving but also his family, and will probably affect the joyous nature of the season for them."

"But at the same time the family of the impaired driver or the person involved in the accident with him will suffer a good deal more if the accident causes injury or death."

"It's quite obvious people are not taking to heart the publicity given the effects of impairment by press and radio. While I believe the answer lies in education it is my intention to continue to impose heavy fines for this offence and also, if indicated, increase the period of licence suspension, as this seems to be the one thing that comes home to impaired drivers."

HEAVY COST

Magistrate Winch also pointed out that the problems of the convicted impaired driver do not end with the fine. After such a conviction a motorist must post a substantial financial responsibility to get his licence back, and insurance premiums usually increase.

Staff Sgt. Frank Slater, head of the Nanaimo RCMP detachment, also warned motorists about the hazards of holiday driving.

He indicated the annual Christmas holiday roadblocks would start the middle of December, and police would be watching especially for impaired drivers.

Below Estimate

Hospital Board Takes Low Bid

LADYSMITH — The Ladysmith hospital board has happily accepted the lowest tender of $209,426, from Cowichan Construction Co. for the construction of a new wing on the 32-bed hospital.

The bid was almost $80,000 below the original estimate of $289,000 for the project, which also includes some hospital renovations.

ELEVEN BEDS

Hospital administrator Ian Peddie, who said the accepted tender has been forwarded to the provincial health department for final approval, said the wing will provide 11 beds.

It will also include a shell for another 38 beds to be developed when the need arises.

OTHER BIDS

Other bids were submitted by Debo Construction, E. J. Hunter, Robinson Construction, and Farmer Construction. The highest bid was $220,344.

Mr. Peddie said the provincial government will pay 50 per cent of the new construction and one third of the alteration, the federal government will contribute $2,000 per bed and the Ladysmith hospital improvement district will bear the balance.

The alterations will include a new laboratory, relocation of the nursing station and a standby generator for the entire hospital.

Nanaimo Arbitration

School Board Wins a Round

VANCOUVER (CP) — A Nanaimo application which was the first of a series of court actions challenging the appointments of various teacher salary arbitrators was dismissed Friday by Mr. Justice Nathan Nemetz.

The Nanaimo District Teachers Association had sought a declaration that James Campbell should not be permitted to act as arbitrator between the teachers and Nanaimo school board on grounds he may be biased.

The association claimed Campbell, a member of the Gull Islands school board, has interested himself in salary questions of his and other school districts.

IN ACCORD
It also claimed he is in accord with a suggestion that teachers should serve a greater number of years before reaching the maximum salary, one of the major points of contention in arbitration.

Mr. Justice Nemetz held, after Mr. Campbell was questioned before him, that Mr. Campbell was not biased.

Weapon Trial Ordered

COURTENAY—Cumberland resident John Alexander Doleman was committed by Magistrate Lionel Beaver-Potts in magistrate's court Friday for higher court trial on a charge of possession of an offensive weapon.

Doleman, who is free on $500 bail pending the trial, was charged following an incident Oct. 4 in the Cumberland home of Lorne Wallace Wellman. The latter was sent earlier to a higher court trial on a similar charge.

The court was told a shot was fired at Doleman in the house—it missed—and Wellman ordered Doleman to leave the house and not return. Eventually, Doleman was removed from the house by RCMP who also told him to stay away.

However, Doleman returned with a rifle, which turned out to be temporarily inoperable because a shell was jammed in the loading mechanism.

Defence counsel said Doleman re-entered the house with Mrs. Wellman's permission and knew Wellman had left his home. The defence lawyers said Doleman's only reason for having the gun was for his protection.

They added Doleman was trying to keep the peace and said the only person with whom he could have fought was absent.

Crown counsel claimed that taking a rifle into a house where a gun had just been fired at you was the worst possible way to keep the peace.

The magistrate said, "There is no doubt in my mind, and I think the evidence is quite clear, that the accused was in possession of a rifle and it was dangerous to the public peace."

For Hospital

The annual bazaar sponsored by the Women's Auxiliary of St. Joseph's Hospital realized $5,500 Wednesday.

The funds will be used by the society for its work in support of the hospital.
